Final Outcome Clear

The statement that allied victories "have been decisive of the final result" gained added significance from the words of General MacArthur's spokesman, who said he would interpret it as meaning that "the final outcome of the war in the Pacific now is clear."

Commenting informally on the week's progress in his sphere of command, General MacArthur said:

"We are doing what we can with what we have. Our resources are still limited but the results of our modest but continuous successes in the campaign has been cumulative to the point of being vital.

"A measure of their potentiality can be obtained by imagining the picture to have been reversed, with the enemy capturing Guadalcanal and besieging Port Moresby, rather than we in possession of Munda and at the gates of Salamaua.

"Such a contrast would have meant defeat for us in the war for the Pacific."

Bombs Hit Jap Base

General MacArthur's statement was coupled with a communique which told of a 63-ton bombing attack on enemy positions on Kolombangara island, above New Georgia in the central Solomons. Many hits were scored with one and two-thousand pound bombs on the Vila airdrome and on nearby Rice harbor. No enemy planes were encountered.

The general also sent Admiral William F. Halsey Jr., chief of the South Pacific forces, a message paying tribute to the officers and men of a fleet task force which sank a Japanese cruiser and two ... and possibly three in ... miles northwest of Kolombangara Friday night. The United States forces came through without loss.

Stage Set for Marion's Free Civilian Defense Show Tonight

CHIEF JUSTICE WEYGANDT

Fairgrounds Program To Get Under Way at 7; Ohio Chief Justice To Speak.

Marion's Civilian Defense show tonight at 7 at the Marion county fairgrounds will be one of the biggest home talent shows in Marion's history and will be open to the public free.

The curtain will rise at 7 o'clock when the Harding High school band begins a half hour concert and various civilian defense units that will be mobilized by an alert signal at 7 o'clock will start arriving at the grounds.

From then until retreat is sounded by Pfc. Howard Fogle of Co. H, Ohio State Guard, while troops from the Marion Engineer Depot lower the colors, spectators will get a full-fledged demonstration of Marion's civilian defense strength.

1,000 To Take Part

All units, with a personnel running in excess of 1,000 persons, will display equipment used in their work and demonstrate just how it would be used in the event of an emergency.

W. R. Martin, civilian defense coordinator, said the show is intended not only to present civilian defense to the public in an entertaining manner, but also to let Marion residents know just what to expect in the way of assistance from the civilian defense groups in the event of an emergency.

One of the early features will be a brief talk by Chief Justice C. V. Weygandt of the Ohio supreme court. After this, the Civil Air patrol will put on an aerial show that will include simulated bombing of a shack that has been built in the centerfield. Around the bombing of this building and its eventual actual destruction by bombs and fire, the functions of the civilian defense organizations will be shown in dramatic fashion.

There will be simulated casualties, first aid work and throughout the program, spectators will be informed on how to best cooperate with the civilian defense units in time of emergency and what to do in the interests of their own safety.

All units participated in a rehearsal at the fairgrounds last night, and leaders today reported the demonstrations have been timed so there will be no dull moments in the program.

Arrangements have been made in the last few days for an ambulance unit from the Scioto Ordnance Plant and for the Red Cross canteen unit to take part in the parade and demonstrations.

State Guard Unit In Defense Show

Regular school for Co. H will be postponed tonight. Guard members will assemble early at the armory and proceed to the Fairgrounds where they will be detailed to assist with the Civilian Defense show, Capt. Carl Ebert announced today.

Due to some of the members working, the company will be unable to proceed as a unit to the grounds, but the officers will establish headquarters on the show grounds at approximately 6 p. m. and as the guardsmen arrive they will be assigned to their duties.

Recruits will be given examinations at the Armory tomorrow night preceding the drill instead of tonight.

Drill schedule tomorrow night will include close order drill, special operations directed by Cpl. Albert Ward, bayonet training under Cpl. Lloyd Turner and interior guard instructions by Cpl. Alvin Franklin. The drill period will be at the Harding High school grounds if the weather permits.

RUSSIAN TANKS NEAR KHARKOV

Soviet Forces Meet Strong German Resistance from Nazi Reinforcements.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Aug. 9 — Russian tank forces crashing back toward the gates of Kharkov from the north have encountered stubborn resistance from fresh German reserves rushed into the battles raging near Dolzhik, 15 miles northwest of that big industrial center of the Ukraine, front line dispatches said today.

Soviet infantry was reported, however, to be mopping up and consolidating their gains in preparation for renewed advances.

The capture of Bogodukhov, a railway town, and Bolshaya Pisarevka and Tarasovka, all northwest of Kharkov on the upper reaches of the Vorskla river, was considered to have reduced German chances of rushing further reinforcements into that area.

Bogodukhov's fall also severed the second of two rail lines linking Kharkov with Bryansk, rail juncture 250 miles northwest of Kharkov which also is threatened by Soviet columns crashing westward from fallen Orel.

Bogodukhov and Dolzhik were the most important of the 60 populated places which the Russians reported they had swept into their bag in the day's fighting. All were located north and west of Kharkov. There was no further mention of activity by the Red army troops concentration in the Chuguyev sector to the southeast of Kharkov, which would be the most likely starting point of a companion column in a pincers move.

The German retreat apparently was being carried out with a loss of men and material comparable to that suffered by the Nazis in the earlier stages of the Russian offensive. The communique said that the Germans lost 77 tanks and 125 planes in combat, and that the Red army captured 48 German tanks, including 15 tigers, in working order. A large number of Germans were reported killed.

Tax Bills To Be At Rural Banks 2 Days

Tax bills for a number of townships will be at banks in rural communities of the county Thursday and Friday of this week, County Treasurer Marion E. Hinklin announced today. The tax collection period will end Sept. 1.

Bills for Tully, Claridon and Scott townships will be at the Caledonia bank, those for Green Camp township at the Green Camp bank, those for Prospect township at the Prospect bank and those for Grand, Montgomery and Bowling Green townships will be at the LaRue bank.

Army Bomber Crash Derails Freight Train

By The Associated Press

WENDOVER, Utah, Aug. 9—An army bomber crashed seven miles east of here early today, tearing up Western Pacific tracks and causing a freight train derailment.

One flier died in the Wendover air base hospital shortly after the accident. His name was withheld. Ten other fliers were injured, some critically.

The train crew escaped injury although 29 cars piled up, causing damage which railroad men at the scene estimated at approximately $100,000.

CRASH INJURIES FATAL

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 9—Lloyd Hersey, 45, of Dearborn, Mich., died in Defiance hospital of injuries received when the truck he was driving left the road on route 24 near here and struck a tree.

U. S. TROOPS IN AFRICA SEALED HITLER'S DOOM

Former AP Chief in Berlin Declares Fuehrer Can't Take Adversity.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9—The shelving of Adolf Hitler as Teuton dictator and the vesting of extraordinary powers in Hermann Goering, if officially confirmed, does not mean that the United Nations are already attaining their goal of ridding the world of Nazism. Confirmation of Der Fuehrer's removal from active command should be welcomed by us merely as an indication that Germany is in the throes of a grave crisis. But greatest caution must be enjoined by all of us who know Germany, not to indulge in wishful thinking and to believe that "all is over but the shouting."

Hitler's eclipse may justly be dated from the moment of Gen. Eisenhower's appearance in Africa. I say this not as a Chauvinist nor as one unmindful of Soviet Russia's almost superhuman feat in checking and later repelling the invader, nor of Great Britain's epic air battle over the British Isle and her gallant achievement in holding the line at the Egyptian border.

Reason for Date

The reason for dating Hitler's eclipse as of November 1942, is psychological. What was it that enabled Hitler to embark upon and attain his unexampled career? It was chiefly his aggressiveness—his being at all times several steps ahead of his adversaries. That as true of him in internal German politics. It was true of him as negotiator in the international realm (see Munich, 1938, for instance). It was true of him as the instigator of World War II and until the autumn of 1942.

In countless speeches and other utterances that I heard or that came to my attention during the first two and one-half years of the war Hitler boasted of the fact that it was he who determined the course of the war; that it was he who selected the area of combat; he who did the challenging.

The appearance of Eisenhower and the American troops changed all this. Both Russia and Great Britain could, with America's mighty forces also thrown into the scales, change over from the defensive to the offensive.

Battle Tide Changes

Since the late autumn of last year it has been the United Nations side which has done the challenging; it is Adolf Hitler who was forced into the defensive notwithstanding certain efforts all of which were doomed to failure, to regain the initiative.

Now a man differently constituted might accept such a change-over with a certain equanimity. He might even grow in adversity. Not Adolf Hitler. As I have known him, I cannot but feel that his psychological collapse began with America's active participation in the European theater of war. To me it was merely a question of time when Adolf Hitler would so completely lose all powers of concentration, or constructive planning, of execution of the multifarious duties of his office that his ineptitude could no longer be glossed over even under the conditions of extreme censorship prevailing in Nazi Germany. A man psychologically constituted like Hitler simply could not take it.

Light Primary Vote Forecast in Marion Election Tuesday

On the basis of absentee voting, an official of the Marion county board of elections today estimated that turnout at tomorrow's city primary election would not exceed 2,000 voters. A total of 54 ballots were cast by absentee voters. This figure is considerably less than the usual count.

Chief interest in the Tuesday vote centers around the two-mill school levy, designed to provide a two-mill revenue for two years, for school operating costs. Also watched with interest is the mayoralty races of both parties. A total of five candidates are seeking the party nominations, three on the Democratic ballot and two on the Republican.

C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the board of elections, said that only one change was made in the location of voting places. The one change is Precinct D of the Fifth ward, where the poll has been moved from 292 Superor street to the garage located at 202 Superior street.

The polls will open at 7:30 a. m. and close at 7:30 p. m., Marion time. Heretofore the polls have opened at 6:30 a. m. and closed at 6:30 p. m., but because Marion is on fast time and the state, which regulates all public elections, is on slow time the new schedule will be in effect.

Despite the expected light vote no reduction is to be made in the precinct staffs, Mr. Ritzler said. Six persons will be on duty at each precinct within the city and four will be on duty at each of the two Marion township precincts, making a total of 188 to be on duty to conduct the election.

Because an unusually light vote is expected, Mr. Ritzler said it is expected that the counting of ballots and tabulating results of the election will be completed shortly before midnight tomorrow night.

War Summary

SICILY—Allied armies drive to within 42 miles of Messina, threatening Nazi route of escape. Americans capture San Fratello, San Agata and Cesaro.

RUSSIA—A Red army flood, rolling the tumbled German army before it, continued to rush toward the borders of White Russia and the Dnieper in the central Ukraine along a 200-mile front between Kharkov and Orel, gaining four to nine miles and captured nearly 200 towns and villages in smashes which took it closer to Bryansk and to the rear of Kharkov.

PACIFIC—Gen. Douglas MacArthur sums up situation thus: Japan, after using her fullest resources in concentrated attack, "has failed, and is now on a defensive." His headquarters spokesman says it is clear now what the result of the war in the Pacific will be.

AIR WAR—Milan, Turin and Genoa, cities which harbor two-thirds of Italy's war industry, came in for one of the burning, scarring and searing air attacks which have made Germany writhe. Hundreds of RAF planes from British dumped tons of explosives in an across-the-Alps blow Saturday night.

GERMANY—Press dispatches reaching Spain from Berlin say Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering is leader of a triumvirate which has taken over real power from Adolf Hitler in order be left as a front. ...rpmrfo to conduct last ditch fight for Germany. But the Nazi party is to be left as a front.

ITALY—Italian Socialist party reported to have appealed for general strike to enforce demands for peace and abolition of the monarchy. Italian press says Badoglio regime is studying ways of "conducting the war to an honorable conclusion."

GENERAL KEITEL

MARSHAL GOERING

THIS TRIUMVIRATE of German military leaders is reported to be the actual ruling power in Germany with Adolf Hitler and his Nazi party reduced to nothing more than a front to shield the country from a popular uprising such as Italy faced after the fall of Mussolini.

ADMIRAL DOENITZ

Reports Hitler Is Through Presage Army Rule in Reich

Analyst Points Out Prussianism Still Is a German Evil That Must Be Crushed.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Reports that a politico-military conference of German leaders has decided on a military dictatorship which will relegate Hitler to the position of figurehead, while unconfirmed and therefore to be accepted with reserve, are important enough in the mere possibility to be of worldwide interest.

The rapid decline of axis fortunes certainly presages a military regime in the reich. This column long ago pointed out that the Prussian war lords were most likely to take matters out of Hitler's hands when the axis finally was crowded into a corner by the allies.

We shouldn't overlook that German gangsterism springs from the generations-old Prussianism—one of the greatest evils the world has known. That's the putrid matter from which the morbid growth of Nazism, or Hitlerism, has drawn its nourishment, and from which many other criminal schemes against civilization have sprung.

Always Plotting Evil

The Prussian military machine—always plotting for conquests of aggression—has supported Hitler because it saw in him a powerful leadership. It has fostered his ego, and pushed him forward as a world-beater. So long as he kept his grip and was going places, Prussianism was willing to let him break trail, but it always has been a foregone conclusion that the fuehrer would mean little to the militarists once he had ceased to be useful.

The reports have it that the Prussian generals are planning a long war of defense. It's said that Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Hitler's second in command, has been vested with great powers and is to act as liaison between the generals and the fuehrer, who is to be allowed to carry on nominally with his Nazi party so as to prevent the political chaos which Mussolini's collapse has caused in Italy.

While we must treat this unconfirmed report gingerly, it makes sense. We are fighting this war to undermine Hitlerism, and other forms of gangsterism, and that certainly means Prussian militarism. Therefore we must expect this most powerful of all militaristic organizations to make a last-ditch stand, for it knows it won't get another chance as it did after the last war when the allies got soft-hearted and failed to exact punishment for war guilt.

So far as Goering is concerned, next to Hitler he has been the outstanding personality in Germany. He has had—or at least did have—a great popular following. The rank and file of German people have had a real liking for "Hermann" as they always called him.

I saw a good deal of Goering back at the time of the Munich

4 Jap Ships Sunk in Daring U. S. Raid on Solomons Base

By ART BURGESS
AP War Correspondent

ABOARD THE FLAGSHIP OF A NAVAL TASK FORCE, Aug. 7—(Delayed) — A light American naval force of "jack the giant killers" sank at least four Japanese warships today in one of the most daring attacks of the war.

The United States ships steamed right into the enemy's stronghold in Vella gulf in the Solomons and destroyed one cruiser and three destroyers. I was the only war correspondent aboard the flagship of the American task force.

(Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique of Aug. 8 said one cruiser and two destroyers were definitely sunk and the fourth vessel "probably so," in a battle which started shortly before midnight of Aug. 6. And, it added, we sustained no losses).

I saw the Nipponese cruiser, a three stacker with an airplane hoist, explode soon after it was hit by torpedoes and shells from our ships in the waters northwest of famed Munda airfield on New Georgia island which is now in American hands.

The cruiser, standing broadside to us, first caught fire in her bow from torpedoes, and when our gun batteries opened upon her in a masterful naval tactical maneuver, I saw additional fire break out followed by a terrifying explosion.

The blast sent flames thousands of feet in the air, enabling me to take down notes as if under a hundred watt lamp. The fire—in sheet of yellow, orange and red—spread over the water, blotting up the channel from shore under overcast weather.

Then a Japanese destroyer hovered [illegible] ...front of the burning cruiser and ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ...

"Two-Tailed" Dog Killed by Tractor

Charles Almendinger of south of Marion mourned the loss of his 10-year-old fox terrier today. The dog, a family pet, was born with two tails and received publicity in newspapers throughout the country, including mention in Ripley's "Believe-It-or-Not" cartoon.

The dog was killed Saturday when it was run over by a tractor here, the Almendinger home.

The dog's second "tail," which was about six inch in length, appeared on the dog's forehead.

RIGHT COLUMN NOW 42 MILES FROM MESSINA

Americans Capture San Fratello, San Agata, and Cesaro.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 9 — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies slashed huge chunks from German defense lines across the Sicilian bridgehead in week-end assaults and the allied right wing was poised today within 42 airline miles of Messina.

Detachments of the U. S. Seventh Army, starting the attack from the sea behind the German's strong positions on the north coast of Sicily, captured San Fratello and San Agata, the latter but 50 miles from the axis escape port.

Another American force seized Cesaro in an eight-mile advance from the captured inland citadel of Troina.

The British Eighth army swept through Acireale, a port only 42 miles by air and less than 50 miles by road from Messina, in a nine-mile drive up the east coast from Catania and also captured San Maria De Licodia, high on the southern slopes of Mount Etna, where British armored charges knocked out Nazi tanks.

The daring amphibious and ground operations were coupled with aerial blows at railways, roads and bridges in southern Italy, fresh and heavy raids on the Nazi communications center at Randazzo and attacks on enemy shipping, a communique said.

Messina Shipping Hit

Without stating whether the enemy still was attempting to reinforce divisions in Sicily or was pursuing a salvage operation, the communique said "enemy troops and shipping in the Messina strait were attacked throughout last night by our light bombers."

Americans outsmarted the fierce German defenders of San Agata and San Fratello by the seaborne flank attack. The amphibious maneuver via the Tyrrhenian sea completely surprised the strongly fortified garrisons.

Everywhere the enemy was reported withdrawing farther into the bridgehead. The "general squeezing out" process by the allies continued at a steady pace.

The fact the Americans and the British control the coastal waters and can repeat the American outflanking feat obviously caused grave alarm to the German command.

More than half of the base of Mount Etna is in allied hands.

"The (U. S.) Seventh Army made an unopposed landing behind the enemy lines and drove back enemy reinforcements moving west, capturing 300," the communique said.

Advance To Join Forces

"San Fratello and San Agata were captured yesterday and our troops are now pushing forward to join the landing force. (Fifteen miles) further south, Cesaro was captured yesterday."

San Fratello also was overrun by the U. S. Seventh Army in the north coastal push, wiping out German efforts to establish a defensive anchor at that point some five miles southwest of San Agata, it was disclosed.

These gains in the coastal sectors came as British and American forces were closing a trap on the fleeing German forces in the central region at the strategic road junction of Randazzo northwest of Mount Etna.

Capture of the port of Acireale placed the right wing of the British army 42 airline miles from Messina.

(The Monday Italian communique, broadcast from Rome and recorded by The Associated Press, said "fierce fighting" was raging without let-up in Sicily and Allied naval and air forces again had bombed coastal routes of Sicily and Calabria on the southern Italian mainland.

(The Italian report said that two Allied destroyers had been hit in Sicilian waters by German planes.)

Units of the British Eighth army, after capturing Biancavilla, Adrano and Bronte in a northward advance through Etna's western foothills over the week-end, were within artillery range of the Troina-Randazzo highway,

GOERING GIVEN WIDE POWERS

No. 2 Nazi Reported To Have Relegated Hitler to Figurehead Position.

By The Associated Press

MADRID, Aug. 9—Press dispatches reaching Spain from Berlin yesterday said "powers of great magnitude" had been given to Reichsmarshal Herman Wilhelm Goering following a meeting of Nazi party chiefs and army leaders.

News of the meeting at Adolf Hitler's headquarters, announced by Berlin over the week-end, lent color to various reports current in Spain that the army is taking over conduct of German affairs in preparation for a long defensive war.

Although, these reports say, Adolf Hitler remains as a figurehead leader, the real rulers of Germany are Goering, Field Marshal General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command, and Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, commander-in-chief of the navy.

German reports reaching Spain indicate the German army considers it necessary to retain the Nazi party as a facade behind which it can operate without causing an upheaval within the country.

This view, it was said, was prompted by recent disorders in Italy, which jettisoned the Fascist party when the military dictatorship of Marshal Pierto Badoglio took over. German leaders are reported to believe that if Italy withdraws from the war it will be the result of administrative

PRESIDENT IS HOME FROM CANADA TRIP

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—The White House announced today that President Roosevelt had returned to the capitol "from a short vacation in Canada" on the north shore of Lake Huron.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters Mr. Roosevelt "did not see anybody to my knowledge" on his vacation trip.

An official statement drafted by the President said the vacation was spent near McGregor and Whitefish bays on Lake Huron.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement said:

The President has returned to Washington from a short vacation in Canada on the north shore of Lake Huron near McGregor and Whitefish bays. He was accompanied by his Chief of Staff Admiral (William D.) Leahy; Rear Admiral William Wilson Brown, his naval aid; Major General Edwin M. Watson, his military aid; Rear Admiral Ross McIntire; James Byrnes, and Harry Hopkins.

Early said there was "some fishing" on the trip but that he had not been able to get details about it. He said he supposed those would come when reporters interviewed the Canadian guides.

Mr. Roosevelt had only two appointments on his first full day back in the capital—a luncheon engagement with Secretary of State Hull and a conference later with Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

The World Was Wrong About Soviet Russia

CHAPTER SEVEN

THE WORLD was wrong about Soviet Russia. Friend and foe alike failed to see the tremendous potentialities of this one-sixth of the world, the enormous strength of these hundred and ninety-three million people. Adolf Hitler was finally to admit it in his October 3 speech at the Sportpalast, Berlin, opening the Nazi winter relief campaign, in a passage as significant as any that could ever be uttered about the war in Russia.

'We have been mistaken about one thing,' the Reichsfuehrer said. 'We had no idea how gigantic the preparations of this enemy were against Germany and Europe.'

There was an ironic touch in the Fuehrer's words:

'That I can say now. I say it only today because I can say that this enemy is already broken and will never rise again.'

He went right on, making the same mistake!

'Her power had been assembled against Europe, of which unfortunately most had no idea, and many even today have no idea,' he said.

He himself had no idea, for two months later, the Red army was to rise, unbroken, and drive the Wehrmacht away from the gates of Moscow.

In that passage Hitler outlined unconsciously the phenomenon which eventually emerged clearly as a great factor in determining the early course of the war in Russia — universal miscalculation and underestimation of the strength of the Soviet Union. The mystery that was Soviet Russia remained a mystery until the most gigantic of all military campaigns exposed at the same time, in all their ignorance, the experts who had professed for twenty years to know all about the Soviet Union.

Usually it is a dull business, raking over the dirty coals of a burned-out fire and finding the fagots that failed to burn. But here it is of vital importance. For if Germany had known the real truth or the strength and intentions of the Soviet Union, how the course of the whole war might have changed! If Finland, Hungary, Slovakia, and Rumania had foreseen the months of terrible struggle ahead, now their attitudes might have been altered. If the United States and Great Britain had realized the potentialities of their new ally, how much better they might have taken advantage of their opportunities!

Who were the experts who were at fault, who made the errors which cost so much? Here the paradox grows all the greater. For the country which paid the most, Germany, had without doubt the best of the experts.

The German embassy at Moscow was as fine a collection of diplomats, observerrs and students as has ever been assembled in a single mission. It was headed by Graf von der Schulenburg, a diplomat of the old school, tall gray-haired, distinguished in appearance, dignified and aloof in bearing, subtle yet firm in his dealings. He devoted a long career to Russia, starting as consul in Tiflis, ending as dean of the diplomatic corps in Moscow. To all who knew him he was the ideal ambassador and his staff was the ideal staff.

THE military side of that embassy was equally imposing. It was headed by General Ernest Koestring, the highest ranking of the military attaches, the dean of them all, just as Schulenburg was the dean of the diplomats. He, too, had been born in Russia, of German parents, had passed much of his career here, and should have known the country. He, too, had a large staff of intelligent trained observers.

What happened to the dispatches which must have been turned out by this brilliant constellation of experts? The truth is hidden in the archives of the Wilhelmstrasse, and may never be known. There are two possible explanations for why Germany was so wrong in her estimate of the Soviet Union. These experts must have had some inkling of the enormous might of the state they had lived in for so long and studied so intently. But their dispatches might have been colored by what they knew their Fuehrer wanted to hear, an account of misery, weakness, and disorganization under Communism. And what they did dare say might have been disregarded by superors who hypnotized themselves by their own anti-Comintern propaganda.

The other side of the Axis, Italy, also had a capable embassy. It was headed by Augusto Rosso, another career diplomat of the old school, but the complete antithesis of Schulenburg, small in stature, friendly in manner, and gentle in his dealings. He had served brilliantly in Washington, but here his day was passed.

The expert of the Italian embassy was Guido Relli, whose rank was that of attache, but whose knowledge of Russia was assumed to be enormous.

The Allies, too, had their experts. The most industrious were the members of the coffee club known as the GETS, the initials standing for Greek, English, Turkish, and Serb, the principals being Christophe Diamantopoulos, minister of Greece; Sir Stafford Cripps, ambassador of Great Britain, Haidar, Aktay, ambassador of Turkey, and Milan Gavrilovich, minister of Yugoslavia. They gathered each morning, usually in the sunlit sitting room of Sir Stafford, at the back of the British embassy, once the home of the Haritonenko family of sugar merchants, across the river from the Kremlin. They sat over their coffee, looking through the tall windows, facing Sir Stafford's garden and tennis court, debated the problems, information, and interpretation of the day.

The GETS' big trouble was that they were not on the 'inside.' In the days when the Soviet Union was trying to keep out of trouble with Germany, it was a rare occasion when one of their number could get into the Kremlin. When he did, it was usually only to see a second-rate figure. They had access to little information beyond the ordinary published material. They were on the way to their disintegration.

The United States embassy made small pretense to expertness. The ambassador, Laurence A. Steinhardt, was best described by a fellow ambassador as 'the best consul who ever came to Moscow.' He negotiated for months to open a consulate-general in Vladivostok. He argued for weeks over exit visas for Americans who had adopted Soviet nationality and then wanted to change their minds. He was known to call on the foreign commissariat and protest against the cancellation of the driving license of one of his chauffeurs for traffic violations. His peak was probably the time he shouted to his telephone operator, 'You call up Vyshinsky, and tell him that if my toilet isn't working in one hour, I'm going up there and use his.' Whether the toilet then worked has not been recorded.

STEINHARDT did busy himself with the information and interpretation that occupied the time of the experts, but it was more as a lawyer than an expert that he worked at it. He would argue one side of a question for hours, and then, apparently to keep in practice, he would switch, and argue the other side. He professed to some knowledge of the Soviet Union, but never to expertness.

The press too, had its quota of experts. In fact, the correspondents out-expertted the diplomats, for this was the era when the cables brought ambassadors minute-to-minute instructions, leaving them little responsibility or initiative; when the news traveled swiftly, making their dispatches dusty with age by the time they reached their governments; and when airplanes brought special envoys to handle most important problems. As the diplomats' influence dwindled, that of the correspondents increased. Their's was the major share in the enormous task of educating public opinion.

The experts had few, if any, personal contacts, either officially or unofficially, with the people of the country they were trying to judge. The foreign colony of Moscow lived a life apart, behind walls which were invisible but as impregnable as the ramparts of the Kremlin. Within those walls came a few Soviet secretaries, cooks and maids, an occasional ballerina or a frequenter of the Hotel Metropole, but among the great mass of the common people, the experts knew no one.

Even a fleeting glimpse of the physical aspects of the Russian countryside was denied to the experts.

So these were the obstacles placed in the way of the experts—and they tripped over almost all of them. Their general consensus was that the war in Russia would last three weeks to three months. They would have been surprised then to know that it would go on to its third year with the Red army still trading blows with the Wehrmacht.

That's the record set by Captain Joseph H. Hart in flying vital war cargo abroad!

HE'S FLOWN tons of freight and hundreds of high United Nations officials across the Atlantic—and recently, Captain Joseph H. Hart, one of Pan American Airways' ace pilots, broke his own record... flew 12 times across the ocean in 13 days, 15 hours!

He's a former Army pilot... and a Camel smoker for 20 years. "For steady smoking pleasure," says Captain Hart, "I'll take Camels. They sure deliver a rich, full flavor—and they never leave me with any feeling of harshness or irritation."

And Captain Hart's choice is echoed by millions of smokers in the service and at home who have found, that in mildness and in flavor, Camels have what it takes.

ANOTHER PRECIOUS LOAD of war freight is loaded aboard Captain Hart's big Clipper. He's flown everything from serums to engines to generals. Camel cigarettes have flown many a mile with him, too, for "Camels are standard equipment with me," says Captain Hart.

The "T-Zone" — where cigarettes are judged

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you... and how it affects your throat. Based on the experience of millions of smokers, we believe Camels will suit your "T-ZONE" to a "T." Prove it for yourself!

How Much Experience?

How much experience do YOU think a funeral directing organization should have? It would be hard to answer that question with an exact figure, of course, but we're sure you'll agree that a broad, extended background of experience is vitally important to a funeral director.

Accordingly, it's well worth mentioning, from time to time, that The Schaffner-Denzer Co. came into being in 1866, and has behind it, therefore, seventy-seven years of practical experience in aiding humanity in time of need. .

It is common knowledge that our school board is financially unable to pay salaries that equal the average paid in the state of Ohio in cities of similar size. It is common knowledge that because of this situation there is a large turnover among the teachers and instructors hired. Towns paying higher salaries get them. They profit; we lose. We have to start over again. We can not hope to maintain our present school standard, let alone raise it, under the circumstances. It is our responsibility as voters to remedy this situation as much as we can reasonably do so, at the polls.

We have a fine school board, and we have the best teachers and instructors that we can hire with the money at our disposal. But in all fairness to our children and to teachers and instructors, our teachers and instructors should be fairly compensated for their labors. They should, particularly at this time, be given an increase in salaries to equalize as much as possible their higher cost of living too. The confidence that we will gain from them will return to us our investment seven-fold.

These conclusions are obvious. our children are entitled to have the best instructors and teachers that our school board can hire; we must pay more money to enable this to be done; and it is the duty of the voters of Marion to see that it is done. Let's not shirk our responsibility; let's vote the two-mill levy in.

WIFE GIVEN MEDAL AT BUCYRUS CAMP

Receives Decoration Won by Husband, Killed in Africa.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Aug. 9—Military railway units stationed at Camp Millard, moved today in solemn review as part of a ceremony posthumously honoring Pfc. Raymond E. Smith of Warren, O.

Pfc. Smith's wife, Mrs. Virginia A. Smith, was present at the ceremonies and received for him one of the nation's highest awards for gallantry, the Silver Star. This is the second posthumous award to be given the Ohio soldier as the Order of the Purple Heart was previously awarded.

The presentation ceremonies were held at Camp Millard because it is the closest military station in the Fifth Service Command to the town of Warren.

In the official war department order it was stated, "It is directed by the President that the Silver Star Decoration be awarded posthumously to Private first class Raymond E. Smith, Company "G" * Infantry Regiment. For gallantry in action on * March 1943, near * Tunisia, North Africa. During the heaviest part of the action when the Company communications were broken by enemy mortar and artillery fire, Pfc. Smith went out on a line repair patrol and although the enemy soon observed him and subjected him to intense mortar fire, he continued on his route, accomplished his mission and then was mortally wounded by the enemy mortar fire. His devotion to duty, coolness in the face of danger and willingness to sacrifice himself in order to perform his duty is meritorious and a credit to the Armed Forces of the United States."

Lt. Col. Frank E. Cheshire, Commanding, Military Railway units at Camp Millard, made the presentation on behalf of the war department and the Fifth Service Command.

RETURN TO CIVILIAN GOODS IS FORECAST

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 9—An increasing number of industries will be able to convert partially to production of civilian articles after another peak year of war output, Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Co., estimates.

"It now appears that the conversion of some enterprises to normal production will get under way as they complete their contribution to victory," said the Middletown steel executive in an address prepared for a conference of the Ohio department of the American Legion yesterday.

"After another peak year, our armies and those of our allies should be fully equipped and should need only replacements of equipment and ammunition. This will permit increasing numbers of partial conversions of industries back to peacetime work."

Such a spreadout of the changeover from production of war equipment to the turning out of peacetime articles and a gradual demobilization of the armed forces after the war will prevent "an unemployment problem of depression size," Hook declared.

Roosevelt Defeats Dewey in "Trial Heat" for 1944

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 9—If Thomas E. Dewey and Franklin D. Roosevelt were the Presidential candidates in an election held at the present time, the indications are that President Roosevelt would win by approximately the same margin as he did in the election of 1940.

Governor Dewey would, however, run a slightly better race against Roosevelt than Wendell Willkie would on the basis of present indications. According to Institute estimates, the President would poll 55 per cent of the major party vote against Governor Dewey at this time. This compares with 59 per cent against Willkie.

In a Presidential "trial heat" survey conducted from coast to coast, the Institute pitted Dewey against Roosevelt and invited voters to express their choice. The results of a similar survey matching Willkie against Roosevelt were reported last week.

The Dewey-Roosevelt trial heat shows the following result:

"If the Presidential election were being held TODAY, and Roosevelt were running for President on the Democratic ticket against Thomas E. Dewey on the Republican ticket, how do you think you would vote?"

Roosevelt	55%
Dewey	45

When President Roosevelt was pitted against Willkie in a recent trial heat, the vote was:

Roosevelt	59%
Willkie	41

In 1940 the President was re-elected for a third term by 55 per cent of the major party vote, while his opponent, Willkie, received 45 per cent.

Neither of the two men in today's trial heat has announced himself as a candidate. The President has maintained complete silence regarding his plans for next year, and Governor Dewey insists that he himself has no thought but to remain governor of New York, although there is always the possibility that he will become subject to a draft movement.

Obviously a trial heat survey reflects the situation only as of today. The critical turn of war events in 1940 was largely responsible for Roosevelt's reelection, and studies today find that the trend of the war will have an all-important bearing on public attitudes toward a fourth term.

An analysis of the comparative strength of Dewey and of Willkie in relation to Roosevelt indicates that if the election were held today Dewey would run a somewhat better race than Willkie in all sections except two, and in those two he would run about the same as Willkie. (See table at end.)

Among the farmers of the country, especially those outside the solid Democratic South, Dewey is at present more popular than Willkie, as judged by the votes in the poll. In fact, from present indications, President Roosevelt would suffer a substantial loss of total farm votes as compared to the 1940 election if either Dewey or Willkie were the Republican candidate.

The farm vote follows:

All Farmers

Roosevelt	45%
Dewey	55
Roosevelt	55
Willkie	50

In 1940 Roosevelt polled 54 per cent of the farm vote.

The attitude of farmers outside the South is shown below:

Farmers Outside South

Roosevelt	39%
Dewey	61
Roosevelt	48%
Willkie	52

The poll indicates that Dewey would not run as good a race as Willkie among voters in the upper income group throughout the nation. More of these upper income voters would choose Willkie than would choose Dewey in a race against Roosevelt.

Against either Willkie or Dewey, the President would win an overwhelming majority among skilled and unskilled workers, and among labor union members, if the election were today.

All Workers

Roosevelt	59%
Dewey	41
Roosevelt	65
Willkie	35
Roosevelt	71
Willkie	29

AN AMERICAN Two-Gun Story

THEY are 40 millimeter anti-aircraft cannon; produced in quantity for the first time in the U.S.A. by Chrysler Corporation, and installed on fighting ships, on shore defenses, and going with the armies into action on land.

We saw the gun for the first time at the Frankford Arsenal on January 4, 1941. It had never been made in large quantities. Its drawings and specifications were not designed for volume manufacturing methods. Our first step toward making them in large numbers was to re-dimension every part to meet our volume production requirements.

WE SEE IT FOR THE FIRST TIME

To help speed this work, one of the guns was promptly shipped to us at Detroit with the existing drawings and specifications for its more than 1500 parts. When the gun arrived it was taken apart and studied piece by piece to determine how each part could best be made. At the same time our engineers and draftsmen began the new drawings and specifications for all the parts.

On February 3, came an order from the U. S. Navy to build a pair of test guns at once. As work on these first two guns advanced, our technicians and production specialists continued their efforts toward simplification of construction and assembly, and determined the tools and equipment that would be required for large quantity production.

IT BECOMES A TWO GUN JOB

A study of the gun by our planning and purchasing specialists indicated that the making of more than half the parts could be subcontracted to other companies. We began at once to place orders with some 1836 subcontractors, located in 281 towns in 30 states.

On June 20, 1941, we were authorized to set up to build the gun in two types—water-cooled, twin mounted guns for the Navy, and air-cooled, mobile mounted guns with single barrels for the Army.

The two test guns on which we had been working were now completed. Within ten days they were tested by the U.S. Army Ordnance Department and approved.

Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto and Chrysler plants were given their assignments to manufacture certain parts of the guns that were best suited to their facilities.

CAUTION—BY CAR AND TRUCK PRODUCTION SERVICES

As gun production got under way the experience gained in years of car and truck production, and the cooperation of Army and Navy engineers, aided us in developing manufacturing short-cuts which saved much time, material and use of machine tools.

One part formerly machined from solid brass was changed to a combination of steel and bronze, saving 50,000 pounds of precious brass per month.

We formed the gunsight plate from powdered metal. This was faster, saving not only machine time but material, too.

We made the flash-hider from a plain steel tube instead of a solid forging, saving greatly in time and over 50% of the material.

Gun barrel drilling time was cut in half, and rifle grooving was reduced from six hours to forty-five minutes. Many other time and material saving short-cuts were worked out as gun production moved ahead.

A STORY FROM THE SOUTH PACIFIC

The care and precision with which each part is made enables us to put the guns together in one-thirtieth the time required before we applied quantity production methods.

★ ★

From the South Pacific came a thrilling action story, reported by the Incentive Division, U. S. Navy. A fine American battleship, under the command of Captain Thomas Leigh Gatch, in 30 minutes of swift, deadly action, destroyed 32 Jap torpedo planes—many with 40 mm. anti-aircraft guns.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL NEEDED

★VOTE "NO" ON MORE TAXES NOW.

In the not too distant future, when the war is won and our civilian economy has weathered the post-war period of readjustment, Marion will have to build a new High School with all the modern facilities, including a commodious auditorium. This project will be endorsed by all citizens, but we must prepare for it now. The first step to be considered by real estate taxpayers and those who pay no realty taxes, and should be in the minds of school board members and school administrators, is keeping our tax rate at present levels, in this critical period for property owners, so that Marion real estate will be in a sound position to support the large bond issue necessary to pay for this needed improvement.

School officials bemoan our comfortably low tax rate, somewhat lower than other Ohio cities of comparable size, but in relation to these same cities, according to government statistics, the average monthly rent paid by tenants in Marion is, without exception lower, as much as $10.00 a month in some cases; and is around $6 00 a month below the average monthly rent paid in the state as a whole. Higher taxes could be paid if higher average rents were received.

With the 2-mill hospital tax, already voted, and the announced 10% increase in taxable valuation of buildings and the added burden of an additional 2-mill school levy, we will have a tax rate equivalent to about $23 00 a thousand, almost $5.00 greater than now. We will again be headed for large tax delinquencies—for tax sales, foreclosures, bankruptcies. And homeownership will be discouraged.

Seriously, let's freeze realty taxes for the duration at present levels, so that we can meet the tremendous taxes that confront us and still buy War Bonds; and, what is also important, so that Marion real estate will be able to finance a new, modern High School, which will be impossible with a high tax rate.

Vote "NO" on proposed additional 2-mill school levy Tuesday, August 10th.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

HENRY P. DRAKE

Vote for the man of the Primaries who can be elected in November.

My years in business of public work and improvement brought me in close contact with the public and with the affairs and needs of the city, and would qualify me to cope with the problems arising in connection with the duties of Mayor. I have served on many civic and patriotic committees, and have always taken a keen interest in the welfare of Marion and its citizens, and am familiar with its needs.

I have been a lifelong resident of Marion, married, and the father of two sons, one in the Army since June 1942, and the other a Junior in High School.

Questions are bound to arise in the administration of such an important office as that of Mayor which will require courage and intelligent consideration.

The next Mayor of Marion will be nominated at the Primary on August 10th, and besides having courage and intelligence, he should have integrity and experience and a determination to protect and promote the interests of Marion and all of its people.

As one of the candidates for Mayor, I ask your votes if you think I have these qualifications to serve this city competently.

YOUR INFLUENCE AND VOTE WILL BE GREATLY APPRECIATED

Letter to a P.O.W.

WILL YOU WRITE a letter to a Prisoner of War . . . tonight?

Maybe he is one of Jimmie Doolittle's boys. Perhaps he was left behind when Bataan fell. Anyway, he's an American, and he hasn't had a letter in a long, long time.

And when you sit down to write, tell him why you didn't buy your share of War Bonds last pay day—if you didn't.

"Dear Joe," you might say, "the old topcoat was getting kind of threadbare, so I . . . "

No, cross it out. Joe might not understand about the topcoat, especially if he's shivering in a damp Japanese cell.

Let's try again. "Dear Joe, I've been working pretty hard and haven't had a vacation in over a year, so . . . "

Hell, better cross that out, too. They don't ever get vacations where Joe's staying.

Well, what are you waiting for? Go ahead, write the letter to Joe. Try to write it, anyhow.

But mister, if somehow you find you can't finish that letter, will you, at least, do this for Joe? Will you up the amount of money you're putting into your Payroll Savings Plan—so that you'll be buying your share of War Bonds from here on in? And will you—for Joe's sake—start doing it right away?

Legend-Breaking Summer

COMMANDER STALIN, chortling with well deserved satisfaction as his Russians celebrate Orel by chasing the German invaders out of Belgorod and threatening to move on Kharkov, says this disposes of the legend that Russia can't wage a summer offensive.

This is a summer for breaking legends. The shattered remnants are almost too numerous to mention. Such as the legend that insurmountable obstacles block complete cooperation between the United States and Great Britain; their invasion of Sicily was a triumph of cooperation.

It is the summer for breaking the legend that air power is only an arm of land forces; air power is earning the right to stand alone. It is the summer for breaking the legend, dear to the hearts of dictators, that self-governing people can be depended on to bungle the job. Working far below their possibilities, due to that bungling, self-governing peoples still are getting the edge on the dictatorships.

But while some legends are falling, others are being sustained, such as the legend that Germany cannot win a war. Twice in one generation the Germans have bled the world with their savage lust for power—and twice in one generation the Germans have made the fatal mistake of overestimating their strength in terms of an underestimated opposition. It will be a long time after 1943 before Germans find new allies to share their defeats.

Naval Artillery

ONE of many old lessons taught in new form by this war is the function of naval artillery, currently being demonstrated in the battle of Sicily and joint land and naval operations in the Pacific.

In these operations, battleships—which are sea-going big-gun carriers, armored like tanks in some cases and designed only for mobility in other cases—are shelling land installations at long range.

While the high adventure of naval warfare inevitably becomes the battles between navies, the high purpose of the ships bearing the heaviest guns is divided between destruction of other ships and destruction of targets on lands. Even today, with all the changes made in warfare by planes, submarines and new types of naval craft, there is no strategic concept more formidable than that of a dreadnaught standing offshore and pumping its heavy ammunition into a city, or some fortified point on land.

As the navy goes to work on one of the jobs it was designed to do, there may not be the novelty that still attends the routine operation of bombing plane. The result is no less important in determining the outcome of a war that never would have been started if Germany, Italy and Japan had not underestimated the strength of Anglo-American naval power. Its ability to withstand the Axis challenge and to fling back the challenge with redoubled vigor has been the most decisive factor in the growing Allied offensive.

A Speech in Philadelphia

CHARLES DAGGART, father of a soldier, president of Local No. 1 of the Tank and Body Builders union of Philadelphia, and an employe of Quaker City Iron Works isn't the only war worker who ever kept a strike from hatching, but his technique is special.

As described in a special dispatch to the New York times, Daggart climbed on a boiler a few days ago to ask the plant's 350 workers to keep on working. He made a little speech—about the 98 employes in the armed forces, the one who had been killed and 23 reported missing. He asked other workers how they felt about their sons and brothers and husbands in the armed forces. He wound up by saying that the thing they were getting ready to stop work about—the war labor board's tardiness about reaching decisions—didn't seem very important compared to the effect of stopping work on American fighting men.

That's all there is to the story, except the ending. Daggart's fellow workers decided not to strike that day. Confronted with the unanswerable argument that work stoppages do hurt the war effort and the men who are doing the fighting, few workers would decide to strike any day. If one question could be kept in focus constantly until the war is won—How Will This Affect An American Soldier"—everybody up and down the line could quit thinking about American production. It would take care of itself.

Whatever Became of Mussolini?

UNCERTAINTY about Marshal Badoglio's forthcoming moves sharpens curiosity about Benito Mussolini. The new regime apparently intends to play out the string with Germany, which raises the question as to whether Mussolini's line would have been any different, if he had remained in authority.

In the absence of reliable information one way or the other, it is just about as easy to believe at this point that Mussolini was ready to run out and lost his job for being a weak sister. And it is not impossible to believe that the whole thing might have been "managed" by arrangement with the copyright owners of the ancient trick of switching the faces out front while the same old gang runs the show backstage.

In a word, Mussolini's burial may have been premature. His spirit seems to be marching on.

News Behind the News

Concrete Steps Must Be Taken in Italy To Insure Lasting Peace, Satisfied People.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—People in this country, in the war forces or in war industry, do not understand what they are getting in Italy and why it differs from Britain and Germany.

We look at Europe through our eyes, not as Europe sees itself and as Europe is. The mistake of mind is not easy to the man in the street and in our conversations and even our literature.

We all seem to think that all we have to do is to oust Mussolini and Hitler and "release" Italy, France and Germany for democracy.

As we can now see in Italy, there has been no democracy of our type not only during the last 21 years of the Mussolini regime, but even before. We think all we have to do is to let Italy go back to the pre-Mussolini era before 1922.

Variety of Parties

But Italy then was ruled by a combination of peculiar political parties. In the chamber of deputies, there were about 350 votes for the government controlled by the Catholic party, which was the strongest, a Democratic-Liberal party of the center (neither radical nor conservative) and a variety of other groups, including the Radical party, the Agrarians, etc.

No party had a majority, and the controlling combination floundered miserably in the face of strong opposition from the Socialists and Communists, and even the Syndicalists.

Names, of course, were as foolish and inaccurate as they are in this country now, and perhaps more so. The truth is that whatever you call them—Socialists, Communists, Syndicalists, or what—the disruptive elements of civilized life as we know it were running loose. Revolutionaries of all hues were on the march.

Now put yourself in the position of the average sensible Italian today. For the past 20 years, his life, mind, and soul has been corrupted by fascist ideals, which now are shattered or about to be shattered. He is sore physically and spiritually.

He is weary from war, and his prime thought are apt to be—not what kind of a world would be grand — but where tomorrow's bread is to come from, where he can get a place to sleep, how he can get money for himself and family.

Thinks Differently

The beauties of an ideal state pictured by our public men (whether Mr. Wallace, Mr. Willkie, or who) never have entered his head at any time of his life since the cradle. He does not think our way.

What we are unleashing in Italy and, indeed, all Europe, therefore, is a wholly demoralized and thoroughly corrupted civilization which certainly is going to be a tough proposition for Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill to work with. Consequently, you get such phenomena as Mussolini easing himself out in favor of the king and Badoglio, and you may get even greater political surprises before you are finished.

Certainly we can now see and must realize that Roosevelt and Churchill have no political organization among Italians and that the only remnants of political organization left from the pre-Mussolini era are something which can be accurately called "the disruptive elements of civilized life," if you do not wish to call them by their inaccurate names.

What to do? Certainly the first thing to do is for us to get out of the realm of poetic statesmanship and realize it is going to take a long time to get a satisfactory, neighborly, sensible government in Italy. Surely also, these facts mean there must be military occupation, not only of Italy, but of France and Germany as well.

Find New Niche

There are large numbers of people in Italy and elsewhere who want to live sensibly and decently in accordance with the laws of Christian justice and neighborliness as we do, but these are not the type of people who become political agitators as a general rule. They are the calmer element.

Possibly the best thing we can do in Italy is to seek them out and encourage them to take the helm and undertake the tremendous task of handling "the disruptive elements" on both the Fascist and opposition sides and find Italy a new niche in the world.

Goebbels Saw It Coming

By Alexander R. George for Associated Press.

ALLIED bombing may not yet have cracked the morale of the German people, but conservative American observers believe the nerves of thousands of people in oft-shattered cities of the reich are nearing the "cracking" stage.

In the last year of World War I, when Allied planes were making relatively puny attacks on some cities, the Germans put out "feelers" for an agreement between the belligerents which would limit bombing operations.

In February, 1918, the Spanish ambassador to London told the British foreign secretary that the king of Spain had been in communication with the German government with the object of getting some check placed "on the bombing of undefended towns."

In March of that year, the reichstag requested the German high command to present measures looking to an agreement with regard to air raids. The British government took the position that such an agreement would be only to give an advantage to the enemy.

In June of this year it was the Spanish government again which proposed to "humanize" air bombing. It was suggested that belligerents declare zones of partial objectives and "non-bombardable zones" to be under the supervision of a committee of neutrals.

A few days later Winston Churchill said: "Nothing will turn us from our endeavor to accomplish the complete destruction of our foes by bombing from the air in addition to all other methods."

Gen. Henry Arnold, the U. S. air chief, said: "We are going to end the war and end it soon by bombing military objectives consistently. . . . Axis morale is already beginning to crack."

Major Grosskreutz writing in the German military publication, 'Die Luftwacht' in October, 1938, said that the reason for the reichstag's air-raid limiting proposal in 1918 was that "the severe moral shock to the population of towns in western Germany subjected to enemy air raids called for effective and speedy measures."

The weight of bombs dropped on Germany during all of World War I was estimated at about 1,600 tons. This summer in a single 45-minute raid on Duisburg the RAF dropped 1,500 tons of explosives.

Hunger and war weariness in 1918 had made the nerves of the German people "acutely sensitive." Observers say the German people now are probably not as hungry as in 1918 but they are probably as war-weary.

It was Nazi morale builder Goebbels himself who, in September, 1942, said: "The German people are more sensitive than the British . . . Enemy air attacks on German cities, will in forthcoming months, create a most decisive problem in internal politics."

The Tyrol

As Nazi troops pour into northern Italy, the oft-disputed Italian Tyrol again becomes part of "Italia irredenta"—Italy unredeemed. It has been within Italy's northern boundary since the signing of the Treaty of St. Germain with Austria in 1919, says National Geographic society.

"Italia irredenta" is a patriotic and political term that has been loosely applied by Italians over the past 70 years to lands regarded as Italian, but which have been held under foreign rule. Nice, Corsica and Tunisia fitted the term in the 1870's, and in 1938 became the cry of Fascists at Rome, emboldened by conquest of Ethiopia.

In 1915 Austria's southern Tyrol and adjacent territory stood foremost as "Italia irredenta," and brought Italy into World war I on the side of the Allies. Result: this land, now being overrun by Nazis, was redeemed to Italy and removed from the "irredenta" list.

The part of the mountainous Austrian Tyrol ceded to Italy at St. Germain reaches Connecticut in area. Except for about 170 square miles it was organized as the Italian department of Venezia Tridentina on the north and the Trento region on the south.

Farming and forestry are the principal pursuits of Venezia Tridentina. In recent peace years it has provided one-fifth of Italy's lumber production, and a smaller but important part of the kingdom's cultivated farms are owned-operated more than elsewhere in Italy, and are mostly under 25 acres.

"VALLEY OF INDECISION"

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Aug. 9, 1933.

Final count on votes cast the preceding day in the primary election showed that C. A. Bolin was nominated for mayor on the Democratic ticket. His opposition in the November election was to be W. C. Phillians, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Interurban service of the Columbus, Delaware & Marion Electric Co. between Columbus and Bucyrus, through Marion was expected to be discontinued within the next two weeks, it was announced by receivers of the company following an agreement with Bucyrus and Marion city councils on disposal of tracks, poles and wires within the two cities.

A pass made by Al Jolson at Walter Winchell in Hollywood recently resulted in a $500,000 suit for damages filed by the nationally-known columnist.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Aug. 9, 1923.

The funeral train bearing the body of President Harding arrived in Marion from Washington at 12.42 p. m. The body was taken to the home of the late president's father, Dr. G. T. Hardining at 498 East Center street, where it was viewed by thousands during the afternoon and night.

Included among notables on the Harding funeral train were Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of War John W. Weeks, Representative Fred H. K. Gillette, speaker of the house of representatives, Attorney General Harry Daugherty, Postmaster General Harry S. New, Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby, Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover and Senator Cummings, president, pro tem, of the senate.

Marion became the press capital of the nation with the arrival here of the tram bearing the body of the late President. Scores of newspapermen who had previously arrived were joined by 24 correspondents on the funeral train, men who had been with the late president on the western tour that ended in his death. Friday this large group was to be augmented by 20 to 30 additional writers who were to accompany President Coolidge to Marion to attend the funeral services.

Panamanian Jargon Aids U. S. Service Men on Isthmus.

By VAUGHN M. BRYANT
Associated Press Writer

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA—Despite one, two or even three years down here on the guard hitch for the Big Ditch, the Midwestern soldier, Southern sailor or Massachusetts marine still knows about as much Spanish as when he landed on this Latin isthmus—which is to say, generally, none.

But in the meantime he has worked out a jargon with the Panamanian busdriver, bartender, washwoman and street urchin which at times is almost terrifying in its grammar—but which both sides understand and which gets results. It's an inter-American double-talk that only the happy-go-lucky gringo could create.

To begin with, the basic phrase in the "tongue" is "Que pasa?"—literally "What goes?" but which can mean everything from "How are you?" to "What's cookin'?" to "Hey, chum, what's the big idea?" Every trooper learns "Que pasa?" the first time he hits Panama City on town leave.

With that as a beginning he picks up fast, so that now he can hurry up the waiter with a brief, "Hey, Joe, que pasa with my steaw?" or "Que pasa that you don't give more rum in this drink?" A few days later he'll learn that "mas" is more, "ron" is rum and "bedida" or "trago" is drink, and will slip those new words into the sentence.

Some Keep Going

Of course, there are some who stop here, feeling they can now "get around" in the language. But other, hardier souls keep diligently at it until they can blast out a "Quen the hell pasa, Joe?" or even learn the closest the Panamanian can get to a translation of "Take it easy"—"Cogelo suave" which, literally would be something like "Seize it smooth."

"Mas" of course is easy and even at mess you cannot impress fellow soldiers by asking for "mas potatoes." And naturally every soldier is sad toward the end of the month when, as he laments to his Panamanian friend, he "ain't got no mas dough."

There are those, too, who aside from regular Spanish words have the habit of increasing their vocabulary by merely adding "o" or "a" to an English word to get its "Spanish" equivalent. This is the school that makes an editor and "editoro" and a letter a "letero." But they get fooled on soap. That word with an "a" on the end in Spanish means "soup"!

How the Panamanian catches on is his own little mystery, just as he probably wonders on the ease with which the armed forces grasp his own pidgin jargon of jumoled words and phrases. He starts not with "Que pasa" but with "Hey Joe."

Variety

That, incidentally, seems to be universal throughout the Caribbean with natives and troopers. But with the attention caught by a "Hey Joe" a street waif can, for instance, go into three routines of "Shoeshine Joe?" "Paper Joe?" or "Gimme ten cents Joe."

These men are only the beginners, though. There are Army and Navy personnel who really make an effort to grab the language and "sweat it out" over at Panama's National University twice weekly attending the popular Spanish for Foreigners classes. Others buy themselves self-teaching methods, and start in on their friends in barracks and the Panamanians when they go to town.

This school of study is often apt to miss on its pronunciation to the point where the farewelling "Hasta manana" (until tomorrow) sounds more like "Hoist a banana" than the Spanish "ahstah mahnyahnah."

General Does KP

By The Associated Press

CAMP LIVINGSTON, La.—General Shoulders has been assigned to a "spud" peeling detail in a company kitchen here, and Colonel Johnson recently was excused from KP duty after being promoted to corporal.

Confusing? Not at all.

The "General" is Pfc. General W. Shoulders and the "Colonel" is Colonel Johnson. Both are members of an artillery unit here.

Too Young To Vote

Your 18-Year-Old Boy Lacks Voice in Politics, Yet Must Uphold the "Four Freedoms."

By DAMON RUNYON

I THINK it a great injustice that [illegible] of the most important years of [illegible] young fellow who is required to bear the responsibilities of what we call manhood, including that of serving his country, is denied the privilege of voting.

The injustice is all the more obvious that many thousands of our youths in the ages of 18 and 20 are fighting for freedoms all over the globe. They are eyed, clear-minded youth, the very flower of the nation, who are playing their part in history.

Yet they are not permitted a vote in political affairs of their home land. They are offering their lives that other nations may have some political direction, but they cannot go to the polls in their own country to express a choice for even a dog catcher, just because they are a few years—or in many cases only a few months—of what the law terms their majority.

They are supposed to know what they are making the greatest sacrifice ever asked of a human being. I think most of them do. They are highly literate, many of them are college and college young men.

But they cannot vote until they are 21. I am willing to wager that the average young man of 18 to 20 in the service, or in civilian life, is more familiar with political conditions in the United States than the average voter of 40 or 50.

A DRUNKEN bum—a derelict without any ties, without interest in home, kith or kin, a nickel's worth of material interest in the community's affairs, and whose vote may be purchased for a couple of dollars—can go to the polls and cast his ballot. An illiterate, a gangster, a racketeer, a dealer in vice—the very scum of the earth—can vote in this country. But not your son, if he is under 21.

He may have a lively concern in the community and high hopes for its future. But he cannot vote. He may recognize incompetence in public office, he may see graft and corruption in the administration of his community, but he cannot express himself through the ballot box until he has "come of age," as the saying is, by which time the powers of evil that he recognized may be very strongly entrenched indeed.

A young man under 21 may marry with the consent of his parents or guardians and may have all the responsibilities of a family man. But he cannot vote. If he is without parents and has an estate coming to him, it is administered for him by others until he is 21, though he may have a fine natural understanding of business and finance.

IT IS TRUE that some young men squander or dissipate their substance after they get control of it, but you cannot judge youth generally by these cases any more than you can judge all middle-aged persons by the incredible folly of a large number of current middle-aged dopes, male and female, with money they never earned.

However, there are not enough fortunes being made nowadays for the under-age to make possible indiscretions in that respect an argument against my idea that the legal age mark for all purposes should be 18. I do not anticipate anything coming of my suggestion, however, because this is an old man's world, with old men running the works. Most old men are afraid of youth.

They are especially afraid of youth in politics. Youth thinks too clearly to suit old men. Youth is inclined to be a little too honest politically. Youth is ruthless toward age in politics and old men want to hang on to office and power down to the grave.

They might admit it would look nicer to have a bright lad of 19 walk briskly into a voting booth to cast his untrammeled ballot than to see a broken-down trambo staggering into the same place for the same purpose, but they might tell you that the latter spectacle would be more reassuring to them. They know how the rum-bum is going to vote.

Vacation Plan

By Truman Twill

On V-day the detachment will stand in readiness at dawn—full stomachs, full packs. After preliminary briefing, it will move in good order to the invasion barge, stowing all gear in an orderly fashion in the compartment designated for that purpose. All members are warned to be on the alert. The success of the expedition depends on making no mistakes of any nature.

The invasion barge will bear in a generally northeasterly direction until the objective is sighted—a white house situated well back from the street. The code name for this objective is Susie's. The tactics call for overwhelming Aunt Susie, without violence if possible. The propaganda ministry has undermined her morale and softened her defenses with leaflets. Members of the expedition should be courteous at all times, remembering they come not as conquerors but relatives.

As soon as Aunt Susie's has been established as a base and supply lines have been secured, minor side thrusts will be undertaken. It is anticipated that these will be of an exploratory nature, but in case such a contingency should develop members will follow their training, being careful to post sentries and maintain their own security, depending on the type of terrain encountered. They should carry with them at all times a toothbrush, comb and a $5 bill.

During the progress of these side trips, which will familiarize the personnel with the territory it is desirable to know thoroughly, a series of forced marches and sudden retreats, a ruse or diversion will be undertaken for the purpose of establishing a forward base in the vicinity.

A mobile column will leave Aunt Susie's in the morning of the third day. It will then reach its objective near X in ample time for lunch, employing a flanking movement based on Plan 5-B. This is the one where you turn into the driveway, bear down on the house and holler, "Hay! Ain't there anybody home?" The enemy, thus challenged, will answer—and that, that.

It is the purpose of this diversion that the spies, will make their way back to Aunt Susie's—when they have had sufficient time to look over the country. In case a fuel shortage develops, it also is foreseen that a fuel dump will be found at this point and enough gasoline left to support a flying raid on a department store in nearby X.

Maximum expectation of operating time for the entire operation is 10 days from the time the invasion barge leaves the garage until it returns and the vacation is over for another year.

The most famous Western Ocean packet of the early 1800s, the 1,413-ton "Dreadnought" held the record of 13 days, 8 hours, between New York and Liverpool. Her skipper, Captain Samuel Samuels, never once "lay to" in a gale.

Navy Doctors Report Instances of Sound Waves Causing Death

By HAROLD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 9—How invisible sound waves kill men in battle is told by Commander Harold W. Hogan, M.C., U. S. Navy, in a report to the International College of Surgeons.

Experiences furnished the basis for the report. The observed cases of long standing cases of death or injury where bodies bear not a single mark, they also have new things.

Relieve MOSQUITO BITES

Stop itches, those pesky mosquito bites that make summer miserable. Use Mexsana, formerly Mexsana Powder. Soothes, and helps cool breezy touch and medicated finance. Clean, pleasant. Non-staining. Get Mexsana.

The deaths occur both in air and water, and of the two, the water is the more deadly. In both cases the lethal blast is compression which travels in a wave at the speed of sound, and which is in fact the sound the ears hear.

In air this speed is about 1,180 feet a second; in water 4,800 feet, more than four times faster. In air the thickness of the compression or sound wave is not well established. In water it is estimated at about five feet.

Lists Injuries

Commander Hogan lists the main injuries thus far seen, by himself and by other physicians and officers.

One is annihilation. This occurs in air, when a person is within 3 to 10 feet of a sufficiently violent explosion. The human body then, he says, may be completely disintegrated by the blast wave alone, and thus be destroyed without fragment or trace.

Another, in air, he or his assistants saw when the torpedo, or torpedoes, which destroyed the Aircraft Carrier Wasp, last September, in the South Pacific, sent a V-shaped explosion up one side of the ship, 60 to the top deck, and above.

"Men standing in passageways near this area," he reported, "were seen to grab their abdomen, double over and collapse in death."

A third effect is brain injury. This happened apparently to some of the Marines at Guadalcanal who were in fox holes or running for cover when a bomb or shell hit close by, at times within 10 feet. The Marines were knocked down and were unconscious from a few minutes to 40 days.

No external injuries were apparent. But there were prominent personality changes. The men were lethargic, apathetic, dull, sometimes with impaired memories.

Treatment Effective

When these men were treated at the Naval Hospital, Oakland, Cal., Doctors Due and Abbott reported evidence of bleeding near the brain linings, and when the fluids which had gathered from this bleeding were removed, the men recovered. Their mental and personality changes were quite remarkable. They rapidly returned to normal.

The medical men do not yet say for certain that the compression wave of air was the sole cause of these brain injuries, but the evidence points that way.

In water the danger area varies from 100 to 150 feet, in air it is much shorter. At 100 feet the pressure wave from 1,500 pounds of TNT is not lethal.

Nevertheless, the sound wave itself is one of the dangers and Commander Hogan says:

"The intensity of the concussion wave generated by explosions in air is greatly diminished in depressions, trenches, and foxholes, so that hitting the dirt is a protection from blast as well as from the resulting shrapnel."

Little Chats on Public Notices

By JAMES E. POLLARD
Ohio State University.

NO BLACKOUTS HERE

Blackouts and dimouts are among the first signs of modern war as it affects civilians. After sundown many of them live in a new and different world. All kinds of man-made lighting has to be restricted for the safety of the public and so as not to help the enemy.

In the former respect blackouts are just the opposite of Public Notices as carried in local newspapers of general circulation. The purpose of notices is to attract the attention of all whose rights may be affected by whatever they concern. This is the very antithesis of the darkness imposed by the blackout.

Even in personal matters, Public Notices are for public consumption. This is both as a matter of public record and information and to give reasonable assurance that all concerned shall have at least this much notification. Full adherence to this principle is as important in war time as in more normal times.

OHIOANS SEE HOPE FOR MORE LIQUOR

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9 — Ohioans were given hope today for more liquor.

The office of price administration fixed markups for wholesalers and retailers in non-monopoly states, effective Aug. 29, and predicted "an average lowering" of the retail price of spiritous beverages.

While the new regulation will not apply directly to Ohio, this being a monopoly state, "it may mean more liquor for Ohioans," said an official of the state department of liquor control, who declined to be quoted by name.

The OPA said that in some instances liquor prices had risen "to unwarranted high levels," either through "misunderstanding or through evasion and violation" of price controls.

"Enforcement of this regulation by the OPA," said the Ohio official, "should make a lot of merchandise available to Ohio and other monopoly states that we were unable to touch before. Naturally distributors and agents have been unwilling to sell to Ohio if they could get $10 to $15 a case more elsewhere."

Distillers have contended for months that Ohio is getting an equitable share of their supplies, but that increased consumption has helped to cause a shortage.

WAR BOND SALES GAIN DESPITE NEW U. S. TAX

July Total in Ohio Amounts To 3 Million More Than June.

Fear that the new withholding tax levied for the first time in July might seriously affect War Bond sales in Ohio was dispelled today when the state's total sales for the month were compiled.

July Series "E" War Bond sales in Ohio totaled $43,641,000, an increase of approximately $3,000,000 over the $40,643,000 total rung up on Uncle Sam's cash register in June.

Additional proof that as far as hindering bond sales, the pay-as-you-go tax plan's bark was worse than its bite, is shown by the increased sales in July over June in 51 out of the state's 88 counties.

Cuyahoga county again led the state in July with sales of Series "E" War Bonds totaling $11,389,000. Other leading counties were: Franklin, $2,173,000; Hamilton, $4,520,000; Lucas, $2,148,000; Mahoning, $1,645,000; Montgomery, $3,581,000; Stark, $2,015,000; and Summit, $3,579,000.

Total sales of Series "E" War Bonds for the fiscal year 1942-43 were $506,146,000 as compared to $190,262,000 for the fiscal year 1941-42.

Should the British cut this highway, only virtually impassable mountain trails would remain to the enemy.

German resistance to the Americans east of Troina was described as still strong, but field dispatches said the U. S. troops were advancing, nevertheless.

An Eighth army prong pushing north along the eastern coast from Catania was bogged down south of Acireale.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's troops made few contacts with the enemy anywhere along the British sectors Saturday and Saturday night and Noland Norgaard, Associated Press correspondent, reported from the front line yesterday that "it appeared likely the Germans were intent primarily on disengaging their troops and getting them back to the Messina bridgehead without risking a major stand."

A Berlin broadcast said "in some sectors our troops, without enemy interference, disengaged themselves to occupy new positions prepared in advance."

Increasing concentrations of small craft in the narrow strait of Messina between northeastern Sicily and the toe of the Italian mainland indicate the Germans are thinking seriously of getting out.

Headquarters announced yesterday great fleets of bombers and fighters swung over the strai some 50 times the day before to bomb and shoot up barges and ferries attempting to evacuate secondary elements of the beaten axis forces.

London's Blitz Babies Find New Life

ORPHANS OF WAR: Almost three years ago these youngsters were orphaned by bombs and driven into the scarred streets of London. Today, under care of the Hampstead nurseries, they have found security and care.

FOSTER CHILD: Here is an example of the result of the care of the Foster Parents' Plan in England.

GAMES HELP in rehabilitating youthful war victims, British nurseries have found.

More than 400,000 British children who lived through the London blitz have a lesson to teach to America.

On the anniversary of the all-out bombardment of London, which began Aug. 8, 1940, most of these children are still happily esconced in nurseries and foster homes throughout the British countryside, have taken the terrors of total war in stride, and will return to their homes after the war in most cases as normal, happy and well-adjusted as they were before.

Credit for this seemingly miraculous salvation of children who might be expected to bear the scars of shock throughout their lives, goes to the 1,200 wartime nurseries of Britain, where nurses, teachers, doctors and psychologists have worked together to erase the horrors of war from childish minds.

Among the most successful of the group are the three Hampstead nurseries operated under the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, by Anna Freud, daughter of the late Sigmund Freud, and Dorothy Tiffany Burlingham, American psychologist.

From 20,000 case histories of children under their care, the two women have written a book, "War and Children," which presents some significant findings from which American parents and teachers can learn much.

The greatest shock to children in wartime, say the authors, comes not from the actual horrors of air raids and the sight of death and suffering, but from the breaking up of normal family life.

Children forget easily and quickly the catastrophes they have seen, but it is a more serious matter for them to readjust their lives to unfamiliar surroundings, away from their mothers and fathers.

Much of the success of the Foster Parents' Plan has resulted from the practice of encouraging frequent and regular visits from the mothers of evacuated children, say the Misses Freud and Burlingham, and in creating small substitute "family groups" within the nurseries, with one teacher serving as substitute mother to not more than four children.

CHURCH HELP ASKED TO SPUR PRODUCTION

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—The war production board went directly to the nation's churches today for help—through appeal to their congregations—in the lagging home front war jobs.

Confronted with monthly failures of production to meet scheduled increases because of various factors which include labor turnover, WPB Vice Chairman Joseph D. Keenan said:

"We have to act fast because the situation cannot wait upon surveys."

He said he had called a conference of representatives here of various religious beliefs—Catholic, Protestant and Jew—to ask them to transmit their request to the pastors and rabbis of America's churches and synagogues:

To appeal to the men and women workers of their congregation to stick to their present war jobs; to appeal to those who have quit war jobs to return to them wherever possible or to go into other war jobs; to appeal to those who can do so to get into war jobs.

Annual Pilgrimage Activities At Carey Attract 1,000 Visitors

Program of Special Events To Continue; Prayers for Men in Service and for End of War Voiced.

Special to The Star

CAREY, Aug. 9—Annual novena of devotions and pilgrimage to the Shrine of Our Lady of Consolation at Carey attracted approximately 1,000 worshippers yesterday from surrounding communities with large numbers present from Columbus and Youngstown.

Solemn novena began Friday in honor of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Yesterday masses were read in the morning in the afternoon the Image of Our Lady of Consolation was carried in procession to St. Mary's park then returned to the Shrine where benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament was imparted.

Because of war conditions and difficulty of travel the number of persons making the pilgrimage will not equal last year's attendance, clergymen in charge said today.

Mingled with the prayers for spiritual help will be petitions that Our Lady of Consolation protect the United States and those defending our country, and petitions for the coming of peace.

Schedule

The schedule of services includes masses read at 7 a. m. and 8:15 on week-days, and in the afternoons at 2:30 confraternity prayers will be recited. Each week-day evening at 8 except Aug. 14, there will be prayers, sermon, candlelight procession and benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Special services will be conducted on certain days for the accommodataion of pilgrims.

The vigil of the feast, Saturday, will be marked by evening services at 8:30 and will include a solemn procession to the Shrine park. Confessions will be heard before and after the procession.

On the feast day of the Assumption, Sunday, masses will be read every hour from 5 a. m. to 12, inclusive. Confessions will be heard throughout the morning. In the afternoon at 1:30 the relic of the Cross will be placed in blessing upon the foreheads of pilgrims, and at 2:30 prayers will be said and a procession with the Image of Our Lady of Consolation will take place. Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will close the day's devotions.

Sunday, Aug. 22 and the following Sunday, Aug. 29, masses will be read at 6:15 a. m., 8, 10:30 and 12. In the afternoon there will be blessing with the relic of the Cross at 1:30, devotions and procession with the Image at 2:30.

Established in 1875

It was in 1875 that the devotion to Our Lady of Consolation was established in Carey. Father Gloden, then pastor here, had a replica of the famous Image of Mary, Consoler of the Afflicted, venerated since 1628 in Luxembourg, brought over from Europe. On May 24, 1875, a company of over a thousand persons, reciting prayers and hymns, went in procession with the Image over the seven miles from Berwick to Carey.

Since 1912 the Shrine has been in charge of the Franciscan Fathers, Friars Minor Conventual. In 1925, the new Shrine Church was dedicated by His excellency, Samuel A. Stritch. Devotion to Our Lady of Consolation spread rapidly and extensively. Each year thousands upon thousands of pilgrims visit the Shrine, and many have obtained singular favors and blessings. In token of their appreciation and in testimony of their cure from bodily afflictions of divers kinds, many pilgrims have left crutches, braces, canes, etc., at the Shrine.

Near the church the Sisters of St. Francis maintain a Pilgrim House which offers board and lodging to those who desire to stay overnight or spend a few days at the Shrine.

There is likewise on the premises a seminary for Franciscan clerics, preparing themselves for the priesthood. These friars participate in all the devotions in honor of Our Lady of Consolation and join regularly in prayer for the members of the Confraternity and the benefactors of the Shrine.

A short distance from the church, outdoor Stations of the Cross have been erected in St. Mary's park. Many of the open air services and the processions with the Image of Our Lady of Consolation are conducted on the grounds of the spacious park.

WILLOW GROVE MINE CLOSED IN NEW DISPUTE

Men Object To Use of New Type of Powder.

By The Associated Press

BELLAIRE, O., Aug. 9—Adolph Pacifico, vice president of District 6, United Mine Workers of America, said today the Willow Grove mine was closed because workmen feared a type of explosive being used at two points in the shaft might cause a blast similar to the one which cost the lives of 72 men three years ago.

He reported 200 men left their jobs Friday afternoon after the use of "permissible powder" was begun experimentally and 400 others on later shifts failed to report.

The men will return to work, the union leader declared, if the company "agrees to comply with regulations of the U. S. bureau of mines for the use of permissible powder and makes an inspection before and after each shot."

James Hyslop, general manager of the Hanna Coal Co. which operates the shaft, said such inspections were not necessary because Willow Grove was not a gaseous mine. He added that these inspections were made only in gaseous mines in Ohio.

JOSHUA THORNTON OF BRYANT STREET DIES

Funeral Services To Be Held Tuesday at 2:30 P. M.

Joshua Thornton, 77, of 985 Bryant street, died in his home at 2:30 a. m. yesterday after an illness of four months.

Born June 21, 1866 in Marion, he was a son of William and Mrs. Martha Hazel Thornton, both natives of Kentucky. His wife, Mrs. Carey Allen Thornton, died in 1938.

Surviving are a brother, Samuel Thornton of 985 Bryant street, five nieces and a nephew.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in the Edwin K. Smith Home for Funerals on East Center street. Rev. William Clemons of Marion will be in charge and burial will be made in Pleasant Hill cemetery near Big Island.

conference, and he was a popular figure. I saw an example of this in the Sports Palace in Berlin where a huge crowd gave him a tremendous ovation when he appeared on the platform before Hitler arrived to make a speech. The fat Hermann, with the big, boyish grin, was called back to take a bow at least a dozen times by the wildly cheering audience, while he joshed and made an elegant display of his ornate uniform and multitude of band-master decorations.

So the crowd laughed and joked in friendly fashion with "Hermann," but when Hitler arrived—and this is vastly important—all levity vanished and the great crowd tendered the fuehrer an ovation of reverence. Nobody ever thought of calling him "Adolf" or of trying to joke with him.

In that fact has lain Hitler's great strength. He has been not only a political and military chief, but to millions of his followers he has been a spiritual leader. Many Germans, especially among the young people, literally regard him as a Messiah, and the idea of divinity has been carefully cultivated by his lieutenants.

I believe that no man can take Hitler's place, and that once his dictatorship collapses, the whole structure of Nazism will go to pieces rapidly. Goering perhaps could do better than anyone else in trying to fill his master's shoes, but "Hermann" is no messiah.

No wonder the Prussian military leaders have to retain Hitler for a "front." In the end they will have to depend on the discipline of the German army. Their hopes can't be high, recalling the collapse of morale back in the days of old Kaiser Wilhelm in 1918.

3 ITALIAN CITIES HIT IN RAF RAID

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 9—Large areas of Milan, Turin and Genoa—cities that contain two-thirds of Italy's war industry—were reported in ruins today under the hammer blows of British-based Lancasters of the RAF which blasted all three Saturday night.

The triple attack was the heaviest since Italy was warned more than a week ago by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower that the allied air assault would be resumed and intensified because of Premier Pietro Badoglio's resistance to peace moves.

The weather was good and the air ministry said "well concentrated" attacks were carried out on war factories at Milan and Turin and on shipping facilities and yards at Genoa.

The Italian high command said in a Rome broadcast that "damage was considerable, mainly in the central quarters" of Milan and Turin. The Fiat airplane and engine works and the Italian Royal Arsenal are located at Turin.

Resistance to the night raiders was described as slight. Few enemy fighters appeared, and anti-aircraft fire, which Rome said accounted for the two bombers lost, simmered down to almost nothing during the course of the hour-long raid.

In contrast, in the last big raid on Turin on July 12 the RAF lost 13 planes.

chaos as much as a public clamor for peace.

It was understood that Goering was chosen as the Nazi representative in the new set-up because he had long been aware of the army's views and held the confidence of the military leaders.

If German reports here are accurate, the army's power now extends to press, production, civil rationing, foreign affairs and transport. The transition apparently has not proved difficult and is not likely to cause repercussions like those which followed the resignation of Benito Mussolini in Italy.

(The reported developments in Germany were characterized in London as a "desperate" German attempt to "win the peace even though the war is lost."

(Some London comment expressed the view the shift is nothing more than an effort to shove the Nazi party and its leaders into the background in an effort to gain better terms after inevitable defeat.)

It's the Humidity

By The Associated Press

FORT KNOX, Ky. — Do you think the brief cool spell this summer made it harder to stand the renewed heat? If so, you're just imagining things, say the scientists of the Armored Force medical research laboratory.

Actual experiments with men in the laboratory "hot box," with temperature and humidity closely controlled, show that the human body becomes accustomed to extreme heat in a comparatively short time and remains acclimatized for weeks.

The man who moans that "it isn't the heat, it's the humidity" is half right. It takes longer to become acclimatized to moist (jungle) heat than to dry (desert) heat and the degree of success never is as great.

Yet, the research men found it possible, in a period of a week to 70 days, to acclimatize soldiers at heavy labor to a temperature of 91 to 92 degrees with a humidity of 95 to 96 per cent. With dry heat, the soldier can do heavy work at 120 degrees and become inured to the heat in a shorter time. Once acclimatized, the men tested could return to a cold climate for at least two weeks without losing ability to stand the heat.

DEFENDS FOOD BUYING

By International News Service

BOSTON — Defending the Army against criticism of purchasing too much food, Col. Rohland A. Isker, head of the Army's subsistence food laboratory, contends that it is militarily imperative that more food be bought than can be immediately used. Food for troops must be sent to bases in advance, he explained. This means that procurement must anticipate needs six months ahead and shipments must be started immediately. Overseas bases must be supplied with two to six months' supply of food for troops expected to arrive at a future date. In the combat areas, he said, bases must be supplied with sufficient food to take care of tactical changes.

MRS. C. W. M'CLAIN OF MARION STRICKEN

Dies at Home on South State Street; Rites Tuesday.

Mrs. Mary Wilcox McClain, 71, of 442 South State street died at her home Saturday at 9:50 p. m. after an illness of one month.

Mrs. McClain was born Dec. 28, 1871, to John and Julia Snow Wilcox at Berea, O., and was married to Charles W. McClain on Sept. 24, 1896, at Cleveland.

She was a member of the First Presbyterian church and belonged to the Woman's club and the Art club. She had been a resident of Marion since coming here from Cleveland 50 years ago.

Surviving with her husband are a son, Lt. John Wilcox McClain, and a sister, Mrs. Wyona Payne of Los Angeles, Calif. Lt. McClain, now in the U. S. naval service at the American embassy in London, England, is a former New York newspaper writer. Before he was commissioned a lieutenant in the Navy he was a writer for the movies in Hollywood.

A nephew of Mrs. McClain's, Kenneth Payne of Pleasantville, N. Y., is managing editor of Reader's Digest.

Friends may call at the home on South State street. Private funeral services will be conducted Tuesday at 10 a. m. at the home with Rev. S. M. Ingmire, pastor of Epworth Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be made in Lake View cemetery in Cleveland.

NEW PROCESS SPEEDS GUN BARREL OUTPUT

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., Aug. 9 — A new process is enabling a single production line at the Timken Rollerbearing Co. to turn out more than 6,000 heavy gun barrels a month, company officials announced today.

This rate, exceeding output of all British factories up to April 17, 1942, was first hinted by Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell. On that date, the chief of the Army service forces told munitions workers at Harrison, N. J.:

"We have developed a new way of making gun barrels. Within a few weeks, a single American factory using this process will be turning out each month more heavy gun barrels than all the factories of England turned out in the whole war."

In a statement approved by military authorities, the Timken company said its production of more than 6,000 75 and 40 millimeter gun tubes per month was made possible through use of seamless steel tubing and its own secret process. The guns are mounted on tanks, planes and ships.

At the outbreak of the war, gun barrels were forged. This involved rifling the bore, extensive machining and remelting a quantity of scrap. Under this process, 300 heavy gun tubes a month were regarded as a large output for major shops. Expanding forging facilities would have required months, the company asserted.

Timken came forward with the idea of using seamless tubes developed by the concern in the past 18 years as a substitutes for bar stock in manufacture of machined parts for automobiles

BLAMES ANEMIA ON FATTY FOODS

Doctor at University of Chicago Reports Test Results.

By International News Service

CHICAGO — Indications that anemia may be caused by eating fatty foods were reported recently by Dr. Joan Longini, research assistant in physiology at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Longini, through experiments with the blood of dogs, found that fatty acids quickly break down red blood cells. A fat meal, she noted, may increase the destruction of these cells by more than 50 per cent.

By comparison, experiments showed that resistance to cell break-down actually was increased after a meal of proteins or sugar.

Most persons do not suffer from anemia even though they consume many fatty foods because their bodies supply checks which prevent excessive amounts of fat from reaching the blood stream at one time, Dr. Longini pointed out. Normal persons take a longer time to digest fat meals than they do meals high in carbohydrates or protein, and the blood absorbs fats very gradually.

"However, when these checks are inadequate or when the blood cells themselves are more susceptible to fat injury, anemia may develop," Dr. Longini concluded.

The findings on anemia corroborate with the results of other recent studies which indicate that high fat diets also may produce damage to the liver.

PLANE ENGINES ON SALE

LONDON — Airplane engines are being sold to the public in Britain at $50 apiece, but there are not many buyers. The engines, one worth upwards of $10,000, are those of disused RAF Napier Lion models which were employed during the last war and for several years afterward. A London scrap-metal merchant has bought them and is trying to sell them to the public, complete and in working condition. Neither the engines nor the metal is of any use to the air ministry, it was stated here. The engines are far too out-dated for use, and to break down the metal for re-casting would cost more than they were worth.

FLORIDA YOUTH WITH FRENCH

Son of World War I Ace Wins Fame with Air Force Unit.

By International News Service

LONDON — First Lieut. Charles F. Stehlin of Miami Beach, Fla., who proudly bears the distinction of being the youngest first lieutenant in the Fighting French air force, is certainly a chip off the old block.

His father, Major Joseph C. Stehlin, of the U. S. Air Force, also wore the uniform of France, when, back in '17 he served as a member of the immortal Lafayette Escadrille, and won high honors as a combat pilot.

When the present war broke into smoking reality, Major Stehlin, after service in the Polish and Latvian air forces, was successfully established as a business man in his Florida home town, and young Charles was leading a normal life as a student.

Wins Croix de Guerre

Immediately Major Stehlin cabled French officials and volunteered a second Lafayette Escadrille, which offer was promptly accepted by France. America, however, still neutral, had other ideas and threatened Major Stehlin with a sojourn in the klink if he carried his offer into effect.

Young Charles Stehlin, with greater finesse, left America and shortly afterward turned up as a member of the American Field Service, driving an ambulance during the battles of Northern France, Amiens, Beauvais and the Oise, with such gallantry that the French government decorated him with its prized Croix de Guerre and gave him a citation couched in the most glowing phrases.

Escapes From France

Through the whole of the long retreat before the panzers the young Floridan stuck to his ambulance and rendered yoeman service, and when France fell, he escaped from the country scant hours ahead of the field grey hordes converging upon Paris.

In Spain, waiting transportation back to America, Stehlin, in his uniform as a French officer, walked about streets crowded with Nazi officers, and eventually, after the arrival of funds cabled by his father from America, got back to Florida.

Thinking his son's desire for adventure had been cured by his experiences, Major Stehlin entered the young man, then just 18, as a student at the University of Miami. But four months later the young man was off for London to seek admission into the Fighting French Air force.

Having qualified before his ambulance driving days as a pilot, and carrying a log book showing 150 hours' flying time, he was accepted and commissioned a second lieutenant in the forces then being organized by General de Gaulle.

Recently Promoted

Since his commissioning, Stehlin has seen continuous service and just recently has been promoted to his present rank.

For the successful completion of an important mission in Lebanon, the lieutenant has been awarded the Legion of Honor of Lebnon, a rarely awarded decoration, and at present is back in England.

A step-brother, First Lieut. Gordon Hoover, is in service as a ranger in Africa. Major Stehlin, the father, after almost a year's service with a famous American 8th Air Force Bombardment unit, has just been assigned to duty at American headquarters in London.

MRS. A. E. MITCHELL IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Rites at Durham, N. H., for Gurley Ave. Resident.

Mrs. Eleanor H. Mitchell, 28, wife of Arthur E. Mitchell of 223 Gurley avenue, died at 6 a. m. today in Marion City hospital following a Cesarean operation there yesterday afternoon. An infant daughter died at birth.

Born in Durham, N. H., 28 years ago she was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric T. Huddleston. Sept. 5, 1938 she was married to Mr. Mitchell in Dover, N. H. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell came here from Knoxville, Tenn., about a year ago. Mrs. Mitchell attended St. Paul Episcopal church here and was a member of the University of New Hampshire chapter of Alpha Chi Omega, national social sorority.

Surviving besides the husband and parents are two brothers, Eric T. Huddleston Jr., an aviation cadet at Danville, Va., and Sgt. John S. Huddleston, stationed at Camp Edwards, Mass.

Funeral services will be held at Durham, N. H., and burial made in a Durham cemetery. Friends may call at the Merle H. Hughes Mortuary on Mt. Vernon avenue after 7:30 tonight.

Mother of Eleven, Saved from Death Is Head of Mission

By International News Service

NEW ORLEANS, La.—In the gay 90's, some 50 years ago, Eugenie Olivir made her debut in New Orleans where she later married and raised 11 children.

Today, at 73, she is Mother Theresa, head of the Missionary Servants of Christ, the Master and St. Anthony at the San Antonio mission, founded by Rev. Peter Baque for refugee Mexicans.

Told Death was Near

Relating the story of how she became a nun at 61, Mother Theresa said recently on her first trip to New Orleans since she left to visit a daughter in San Antonio 13 years ago, "I really went there to die, for seven doctors had told me I couldn't live."

Making a novena, she visited the shrine of St. Anthony at Cementville, near the Alamo, and met Father Baque, who was trying to establish a mission and an order to care for the peons of the section.

After the priest asked her to help, she prayed to St. Anthony and later in the day had another doctor examine her.

Becomes Mission Helper

"I had walked 24 blocks to Communion and I felt fine," she declared. "The doctor told me that I had the heart of a young girl; so in gratitude to St. Anthony I promised to help in the work."

The only woman helper at the time, she started caring for the children.

"I learned to speak Mexican without any trouble because of my French," she said.

"Conditions would have been appalling to a younger woman. Families of seven and eight slept in one bed and they knew nothing of cleanliness or morals.

Two Daughters Nuns

"At one wedding ceremony after I had worked there a while, the priest married a grandmother and grandfather, a mother and father and a daughter and son-in-law, all in one family group, who had never considered a marriage ceremony necessary."

The original 14-acre site of the mission has grown to 85 and the sisters now number nine. First made superior, the former New Orleans deb was made mother of the order in 1932 on the death of Father Baque.

Salt Lake City Man Boss of MacArthur's Air Lines

Southwest Pacific Command Entails Operation of Complicated "Airlines" Over Dozens of Routes.

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA —Responsible for one of the most intricate "airlines" in the world is Colonel Ray T. Elsmore of Salt Lake City, director of air transport in the southwest Pacific area.

In his command are nearly two score varying air routes, travelled daily by both American and Royal Australian Air Force flyers in exactly 13 different types of aircraft, and involving an average of some million air miles monthly.

In every sense of the word, gregarious, able Elsmore is a veteran of the Pacific war.

He Wasted No Time

He arrived in Manila on Nov. 15, 1941, was met at the debarkation depot by the late Brig. Gen. Harold H. ("Pursuit") George and was promptly ordered to Mindanao to assume command of installations at Del Monte, the secret American base which was later the rendezvous point for Maj. Gen. Ralph Royce and his Bataan-bound airmen.

With only 500 men at his disposal and with war obviously only a matter of hours, the 52-year-old Elsmore wasted no time on Mindanao. Almost a week before war was declared, basic installations including widely dispersed airdromes had been completed—and their value was proven tangibly when the remnants of the 19th Bombardment Group used Mindanao for weeks against the Japs.

Prepares 22 Dromes

On the outbreak of the war, Elsmore was named commander of the Mindanao Air Task Force and promoted from major to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

And even with the Japanese immovably ensconced at a number of key points on Mindanao, Elsmore's carefully-camouflaged command continued to operate undisturbed.

Underground airdromes for his mighty interception fleet of four tattered P-40's were in use, as was an underground fighter sector headquarters, underground barracks and a hospital which had been literally carved into a mountain.

Meanwhile, surface construction—meticulously camouflaged under Elsmore's direction—was speeded, and by the spring of 1942 no less than 22 operational airdromes were in readiness.

Elsmore's brilliant engineering feat was, however, somewhat frozen by the simple fact no one sent him any airplanes to put on his shiny air strips.

Gets MacArthur Out

But if the Mindanao Air Task Force was unable to operate as a tactical unit, its value as an evacuation medium was unequaled. In every known type of transport aircraft, tens of hundreds of personel were moved through Mindanao to Australia and Java, while Elsmore personally supervised the air dash of General Douglas MacArthur and his staff made from Mindanao to Darwin.

Elsmore himself left Mindanao on April 20th—six days before the fall of Corregidor—on the last airplane to leave Del Monte.

Passes Huge Domain

Before being named to the directorate of Air Transport, where he relieved Group Captain Harold Gatty of the famed Post-Gatty round-the-world flying team, Elsmore was chief of staff to Brig. Gen. Kenneth Walker, then chief of the Fifth Bomber Command.

With Air Transport playing an increasingly prominent role in knitting Australia into a solid fighting machine, Elsmore's command stretches over an area bigger than the continental United States while he is responsible, as well, for the shipment of all airborne war supplies to New Guinea.

The Play Goes On

MOSCOW—The casts of two of Stalingrad's theaters—the Drama and the Variety—have returned to the historic city on the Volga and are giving performances again as usual in the midst of ruins.

The cast of a third theater—the Comedy—is expected back in Stalingrad shortly according to Mikhail B. Khrapchenko, chairman of the Soviet arts committee.

Stavropol is also preparing to revive its Drama theater cast from Siberia, where it was evacuated during the fighting. This is illustrative of the Soviet system of evacuating theater personnel before the Germans can capture the place, keeping the cast together in a safe area and returning them to their original location when it is recaptured.

"War has shown us how strong the ties between the theater and the life of the country are," said Khrapchenko, "and how dearly Soviet people love the theater."

As a result, a theatrical force is an integral part of the liberating Armies, Khrapchenko explained. "Performances are held in delivered towns literally on the very next day after the enemy has been driven out."

Performances are also given by frontline entertainment troupes which arrive with Army forces. After hasty preparations, they perform on a makeshift stage in a semi-demolished club or theater building.

Rudy York Revives Big Home Run Bat

Detroiter May Break His Own Record by Hitting 19 This Month.

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Rudy York, whose home run bat has revived unexpectedly, may set a major league record by hitting 19 or more round-trippers this month.

The Husky Detroit first baseman socked three homers yesterday in leading the Tigers to a double win over the Chicago White Sox. The circuit wallop put him the major league leadership with 18, but more important they gave him a total of five for the first week of August.

It was six years ago, in August, 1937, that York walloped 18 homers for a major league mark that still stands. York's Bengal clouters hammered 21 homers last year and 27 in 1941.

He hit two of his homers in the first game while Virgil Trucks beat the Sox, 8 to 2. His third came in the second game as Tommy Bridges twirled a four-hit 3 to 0 shutout.

The first place New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals each swept a doubleheader to increase their leads in the American and National leagues.

The Yankees walloped the Philadelphia Athletics, 7 to 1, but had to come from behind to win the second game, 8 to 4, in 10 innings.

The Cardinals stretched their lead to 13 games by beating the second place Pittsburgh Pirates twice, 8 to 6 and 5 to 2.

Cincinnati moved within half a game of the Pirates by splitting a twin bill with the Chicago Cubs. The Cubs took the opener, 4 to 3, and a seven-run outburst in the fifth inning gave Cincinnati the nightcap 10 to 7.

The fading Brooklyn Dodgers took it on the chin for the tenth straight time when Elmer Nieman doubled Tommy Holmes home in the ninth inning to give the Boston Braves a 5 to 4 victory. Brooklyn now has lost 15 of 18 games.

Cleveland pulled to within half a game of Detroit and the White Sox by beating the St. Louis Browns twice, 6 to 5 in 14 innings and 5 to 2 behind Jim Bagby's five-hit pitching for his 12th win of the year.

Washington divided a bargain bill with the Boston Red Sox. The Senators took the opener, 4 to 3, and the Sox won the nightcap by the same score.

The Phillies swept a four-game series from the New York Giants by winning both ends of a doubleheader, 5 to 1 and 8 to 2, thus regaining sixth place.

Injury Jinx Still on Indian's Trail, Ken Keltner Spiked

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9—The injury jinx still is a member of the Cleveland Indian roster, and its latest appearance resulted in yesterday's casualty to third sacker Ken Keltner, who retired with a badly slashed ankle during a double header which the Tribe won from the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 5 and 5 to 2.

Keltner apparently was spiked by Mike Chartak in the 12th inning of the 14-inning first game. Dr. M. H. Castle, team physician, said Keltner would be out of action for at least a month.

Chubby Dean relieved Mel Harder on the mound for Cleveland in the tenth inning, after Hank Edwards had tied up the ball game by pinch-tripling and scoring on Bob Muncrief's wild pitch. Dean and George Caster dueled for four scoreless innings and the Tribe won in the fourteenth when Dean singled Jeff Heath home.

Jim Bagby hung up his twelfth victory of the season in the nightcap, founded largely on Heath's 425 foot, inside the park home run with two mates on bases in the first inning.

In the afterpiece, the Brownies set a new mark for American league defensive play when they manipulated 24 putouts without an assist.

The Indians are idle today and tomorrow, then meet the Philadelphia Athletics in a twi-night double header Wednesday.

Universal and Coke Teams To Close Industrial-Commercial Season Tuesday

Spotlight game tomorrow night, the last night of play for the regulation 1943 Industrial-Commercial league schedule, will be played at Lincoln park where Universal Cooler and Coca-Cola will lock horns in a return clash.

Although this game is just a sidelight as far as affecting the standings of either league goes, it will be one of the season's red-letter days for both Coke and Cooler players. The local softball season this year was opened by these two teams on June 1. Coca-Cola, with Pitcher Coxie Weiss at his best, defeated Universal in the curtain raiser, 3 to 1.

Fans all agree that the Cooler outfit has improved to a great extent since that opening battle with the beverage boys but they are not certain just how much stronger, if any, Coca-Cola is. Since the unauspicious initial Coke game, Cooler has been on the short end only once, that time to the Huber Threshers. However, the cold-storagers bounced back to smash Huber into submission in a return match, 3 to 2.

Coke Record

Meanwhile, Coke has lost three games since the first Cooler encounter. Two of these defeats were at the hands of the same Huber team and the other by General Excavator.

Bill Everly of Cooler and Coxie Weiss will without a doubt be the beginning chuckers tomorrow night and they should stage a good grudge fight, battled with balls, bats, and gloves.

In the next to the last strictly Industrial league game of the year, General Excavator and Commercial Steel should put on a top-notch struggle for third place at McKinley park. Both teams now have two wins and five setbacks. Therefore, the victor tomorrow night will be officially tabbed as "show" team of the Industrial circuit.

In the first round contest, the Diggers whipped the Commercial Steelers, 10 to 2, with Paul Sycks hurling one of his finest games of the season.

Huber is expected to do no more than "warm up" for the championship game with Cooler Thursday night, when the Threshers tangle with the Commercial league Waldo Dodgers at Garfield park. Manager Wade Conkle of Huber probably will start Harold "Fat" Millisor, his dependable meal-ticket, but will not finish up with him. Conkle wants "Fat" to be his most brilliant self on the mound against Cooler, Waldo will probably use Jim Ward, multi-beaten flinger.

Millisor hurled a one-hitter against the Dodgers in the first round as the Threshers annexed a 9 to 0 win.

Game Rescheduled

The title rubber tilt Thursday night between the Threshers and the Coolerites was formerly set for Friday night but was moved up a day with the unanimous agreement of Industrial league managers and the authorization of the city softball commission.

Lincoln park, with its over 1,000 stationary seating capacity in the roofless grandstand, will be the stage for the championship play-off.

Winner of the Cooler-Huber set-to will succeed S. W. O. C. 1949, Marion Steam Shovel, as champs of the Industrial league. The Shovel club because of lack of interest in softball this year, dropped the sport for the '43 season.

ALL STAR MATCHES FAVORED BY WOOD

DETROIT, Aug. 9—As captain of the American Ryder cuppers, who now hold a 3 to 1 series edge over domestic challengers, National Open Champion Craig Wood thinks golf should have an annual all-star show even after international matches with the British are resumed.

"There's no reason why we can't have two captains and two all-star squads for a big match every year," declared Wood after he had led his cup squad yesterday to an 8½ to 3½ triumph over Walter Hagen's challengers. "Then every second year we could send the best against the British in Ryder play."

The Ryder matches with the British are played every two years.

That Detroit likes the all-star series idea was further shown yesterday by the 10,000 gallery at the Plum Hollow course that poured $35,000 into Red Cross coffers to see Wood's squad capture six of eight singles matches. The cuppers carried over a one-point lead from Saturday's four-ball matches.

Wood personally accounted for one victory by beating off a late challenge by Const Guardsman Jimmy Thomson, 2 and 1. Other cup victories were contributed by Byron Nelson, Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Sgt. Vic Ghezzi, Lloyd Mangrum and Al Watrous.

The most decisive triumphs on record here were gained by McSpaden, who again beat his Chicago Tam O'Shanter playoff rival, O'Neal (Buck) White, and by Watrous, who whipped Wee Bobby Cruickshank. Both won 9 and 8.

Plenty of Fish in Ohio Streams

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9—Fish are plentiful in Ohio streams despite high and muddy waters which has reduced the catch, the state conservation division reported today.

"Contrary to the belief that during high water small fish are washed down stream and disappear, fish management men have made checks to prove there are plenty of small fish in the streams following this years hatch," said a department announcement.

E. L. Wickliff, assistant chief of the fish management section said checks of a number of heavily flooded streams showed an abundance of small fish, including the small-mouth bass, rock bass, long-ear sunfish, green sunfish and several species of minnow, suckers and darters.

These tests were considered typical of conditions throughout the state and indicate "there will be a good survival of the 1943 hatch in Ohio's streams, all of which have been flooded since the spawning season," the department reported.

ASSOCIATION RACE UNCHANGED TODAY

By The Associated Press

The American association pennant race remained stable today, with Milwaukee on top with a 5½ game lead, after all doubleheaders of Sunday's program were halved.

Preacher Roe, scattering five hits, racked victory No. 10 to give Columbus a 2-1 decision in the opener. Wes Livengood came back in the nightcap to twirl Milwaukee to a 1-0 shutout on a four-hit job.

Indianapolis compiled a three-game winning chain with a 4-0 job over St. Paul but the Saints engineered a six-run inning to clinch the afterpiece 9-5.

At Louisville Steve Barath's third single of the game came in the ninth with the bases loaded to break a 2-2 tie and give the Colonels a 3-2 verdict over Minneapolis. But the Kels spirited away the second game, 5-3.

Toledo's five-run blast in the second inning on three hits and a pair of Kansas City miscues, gave the Mud Hens a 6-3 victory. But the Blues swiped the nightcap, 3 to 1.

Unrated Beef Dept.—Trick Shot Joe Kirkwood is burned because after he's been invited to play in the Ryder cup matches at Detroit, all they wanted him to do was give an exhibition. He passed up an $800 offer to make the trip—and had $2,000 worth of golf trophies swiped from him, to boot. Leo Diegel is peeved over some of the Ryder team selections ..And Tommy Armour has a beef because he wasn't named to the squad... and Sep Palin, who won one Hambletonian, recently wired Ben White, who has won three of 'em, asking Ben and some of the boys to do something about getting this year's corn-tassel derby moved to another track because the heavy footing on Empire City's strip doesn't do the hosses any good...

Translator in U. S. Held for Espionage

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 — Roberto Lanas Vallecilla, 35, foreign language translator in the office of the coordinator of inter-American affairs, was under arrest today on charges of espionage.

The federal bureau of investigation said the suspect, a native of Colombia, admitted he had written three letters in secret ink to transmit war production information to the enemy.

The FBI said Lanas formerly worked with the international labor organization, a league of nations affiliate, in Geneva and later agreed to serve as a secret Nazi agent. He was trained by German experts in espionage work, the FBI added, before coming to New York three years ago. He joined the staff of the inter-American coordinator's office in February, 1942.

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Aug. 9—Rev. Raymond Gayle, rector-elect of St. James Episcopal parish and the Galion and Shelby Episcopal parishes, was in Bucyrus Saturday meeting members of his congregation and visiting his new church.

The new rector, who succeeds Rev. Robert F. McGregor who leaves Sept. 1 for Christ Episcopal parish at Oberlin, is a native of Portland, Ind., a graduate of the University of Kentucky and of Bexley hall, Kenyon college. He has been engaged in missionary work in the state of Nevada where he also was associated in youth work. He also brings a record of Red Cross and Boy Scout activity to Bucyrus.

Bolt of Lightning Hits Hardin Co. Residence

KENTON, Aug. 9—The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Sparr, south of Kenton, was damaged by lightning in an electrical storm but the Sparrs, arriving home just after the bolt struck, disconnected electrical wiring and prevented spread of the fire. Wind also damaged a portion of the roof at a horse barn on the Hardin county fairgrounds. Fair Secretary D. B. Robinson said.

Naval Flier Tells Of Battle with Zeros

By The Associated Press

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Aug. 9—Navy Lt. (JG) Charles H. Schild of Monroeville, O., today described the action over Guadalcanal last June 1 when his fighter squadron destroyed 31 planes for the highest total of any squadron in the air that day. Schild, who bagged two Jap Zeros, when American forces destroyed 77 planes in an armada of 80 Japanese ships, gave this report of his part in the action:

"I peeled off after Lt. Quady (flight leader) and opened up on the one on the inside of the Jap formation. This burst hit him in the right wing, which was apparently sheared off. "I pulled up to find the air filled with them. . . . I hit another Zero which burst into flames and went down. I missed two others when my guns jammed, and ended by diving away from a Zero and into a cloud."

DR. INGMIRE SPEAKS AT UNION SERVICE

Gives Sermon at First United Brethren Church.

In the union church service Sunday night in First United Brethren church Dr. S. M. Ingmire of Epworth Methodist church spoke on "Rebuilding Life," emphasizing the text, Revelation, 3:2 "...establish things that remain."

Rev. J. A. Carriker read Scripture. Rev. H. C. Ahrens offered prayer and Rev. Garrison Roebuck, host pastor, presided. The Men's chorus of the host church sang.

Stressing the thought that life should be built around affirmative rather than negative attitudes, Dr. Ingmire pointed out various affirmative things in men's lives. They were memories of the past, realization of obligation to the past including appreciation for the martyrs and for the good examples of other persons' lives, and looking to the future.

"Things remaining" are justice, mercy, honor and truthfulness, he said, and he quoted the words of Christ, "Whatsoever things are lovely....true... just...of good report, think on these things," and ended with remarks on the Twenty-third Psalm.

The meeting of the Christian Young People's union in the Sunday school room of First United Brethren church was attended by a large group and was in charge of the youth group of First Evangelical and Reformed church. "Service Projects As a Pathway That Leads to God" was the topic.

Open meditation was played by E. Haberman and the Scripture was read by Twila Retterer. Rev. H. C. Wierth offered prayer and a poem was read by Marjorie Stuckey. Guest speaker was Mrs. Irene Quigley. She spoke on share-croppers of the southern states and brought out the need for service projects to relieve the hardships suffered by the people. Joan Uncapher presided.

Donaldson Appears Winner in Kentucky

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 9—J. Lyter Donaldson of Carrollton, on the basis of incomplete unofficial returns, apparently won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in last Saturday's primary and will oppose former Court of Appeals Judge Simeon S. Willis of Ashland in the November general election.

Donaldson, closely associated with the administrations of former Gov. A. B. Chandler and Gov. Keen Johnson, was leading his three opponents by a wide margin with returns from over half the state's precincts tabulated.

The Carrollton banker held a lead of 36,000 over Ben Kilgore of St. Matthews, his closest contender, but neither Kilgore, Rodes K. Myers of Bowling Green or John K. Thobe of Covington would concede defeat.

Donaldson, on the basis of an unofficial count in 2,414 of the 4,293 precincts had 81,982; Kilgore, 55,868; Myers, 18,369; and Thobe, 1,734.

Nelson Discourages Civilian Goods Reports

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9 — Unrestricted manufacture of civilian goods will not be resumed "as long as materials continue tight," Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board said today.

He added, however, that "cook stoves or farm machinery or whatever" will be produced to maintain civilian health and welfare "regardless of the scarcity of the materials involved."

Nelson's statement, obviously designed to discourage talk of "free" manufacture of civilian goods, outlined this production policy:

"It is of equal importance to maintain the health and welfare of the soldier on the fighting front and the worker on the home front."

35—PUBLIC SALES

PUBLIC NOTICE
of thanks to the large crowd of fine people who attended our public sale, 1065 E. Church St., Saturday, July 24. Words cannot express our appreciation to you who helped make our sale so successful, and it is a pleasure for us to join the hundreds of patrons who say:
It pays to see Col. F. E. Williams for your public sale.
We had several offers for our goods before the sale and we wanted to sell but we had confidence in Mr. Williams' judgment so we called him for advice. When he came and looked over our goods, he said he would take full charge of the sale and guarantee us more than we had been offered. At the close of the sale we received a check from Mr. Williams for the sum of $428.80 more than we had been offered. It is a pleasure for us to recommend Mr. Williams and his assistant, C. R. Purdy to others who expect to have a sale. We are glad to back the statement of Mr. Williams when he says, he has confidence in his hundreds of customers for they are of the finest people in state of Ohio. Again we say thanks and best wishes to all of you.
MR. and MRS. JOHN MARTIN.

THANKS TO YOU
Who attended our sales last week.

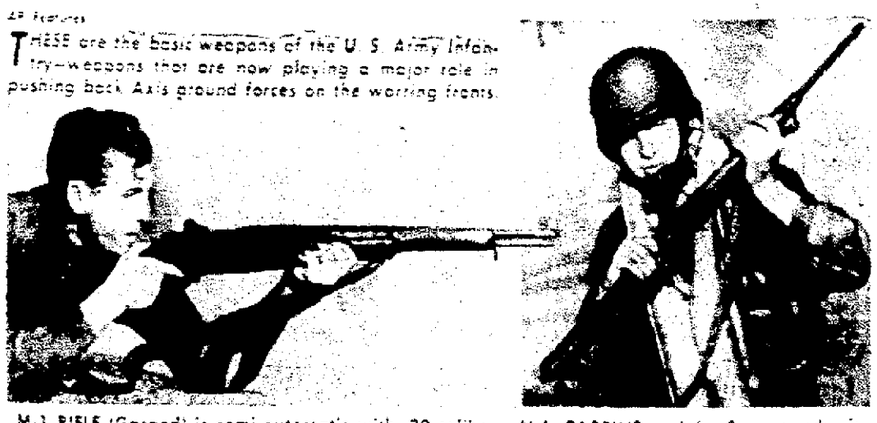
U. S. Infantry Hits with These Weapons

AP Features

THESE are the basic weapons of the U. S. Army Infantry—weapons that are now playing a major role in pushing back Axis ground forces on the warring fronts.



M-1 RIFLE (Garand) is semi-automatic with .30 caliber cartridges. It fires eight shots each time the trigger is squeezed, is called world's finest by Army men.

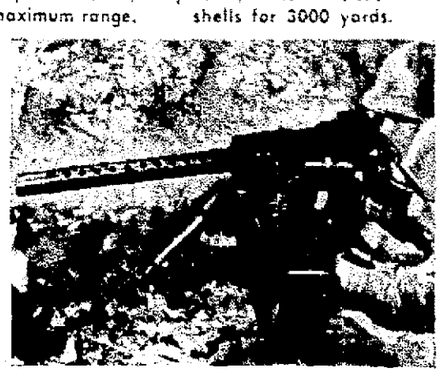
M-1 CARBINE weighs five pounds, is loaded with 15-round magazine of .30 caliber charges.

BROWNING AUTOMATIC RIFLE, .30 cal. delivers semi-automatic fire or 20-shot burst.

MORTAR, 60 mm., fires three-pound high explosive shell, has 1900-yd. maximum range.

MORTAR, 81 mm., fires high explosive, demolition, or smoke shells for 3000 yards.

BROWNING MACHINE GUN, .30 cal, fires 500 rounds a minute, is water-cooled.



LIGHT MACHINE GUN, .30 cal, is air-cooled, fires 550 rounds a minute.

ANTI-TANK GUN fires high-velocity armor-piercing shell, has 7500-yard range.

SELLING PRESSURE DEPRESSES GRAINS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 9 — Selling pressure entered grain pits in larger volume today and losses of a cent or more were recorded in wheat and rye, the September delivery of the latter grain falling below the $1.00 level for the first time since late in June. Oats were off major fractions.

Houses with eastern connections were selling rye, and traders thought some liquidation was connected with the uncertain political situation in Germany and Italy. The slump in wheat reflected increased marketings in the northwest, where harvest is expanding. Liberal country offerings of cash corn(totaling over 100,000 bushels, depressed oats.

15 Persons Interviewed by WAVES Recruiter

Ensign Eunice Leiken, WAVES officer assisting the Marion Naval recruiting station, interviewed 15 applicants during her visit here Friday and Saturday.

She said, "I'm very well satisfied with the results of my visit to Marion. Judging from the activity shown, I feel that there are many more girls in Marion who are interested and can qualify for the WAVES. For that reason I think that another visit should be scheduled for this territory in the near future."

Ensign Leiken also interviewed applicants in Upper Sandusky and Galion yesterday.

Chief Dugan reports that a marked increase has been noticed in this territory and that July enlistments in the WAVES has been the greatest since the recruiting station here has been enlisting women for the Naval Reserves.

STOCKS CHECK SLOW DECLINE

Market Betters Position After Two Weeks on Slipping Side.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 9 — After two weeks of decline the stock market today bettered its position slightly but dealings continued at low level.

Brokers reported a widespread tendency on the part of customers to remain inactive pending more definite clues on future trends.

Among issues given fair support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Goodyear, Goodrich, U. S. Rubber, Pepsi-Cola, Woolworth, United Aircraft, Pan American Airways, American Telephone, International Telephone, Public Service of N. J., Westinghouse and American Can.

The improved action of rails in the early proceedings was attributed to settlement of the wage controversy involving non-operating railroad workers.

Recipes for a Porch Supper

By ALICE DENHOFF

Among the delights of our way of living and one that we took for granted is the porch supper. Very often mother and dad were left to eat it alone as the youngsters and their friends dashed off madly somewhere or were not in evidence at all as summer time rolled around. But now the busy family is glad of the respite that such a meal brings and you may know that many a man fighting in some far-flung theater of war thinks only of the time when he can draw up a chair at the porch supper table on a softly scented summer evening and amid happy laughter and bright conversation enjoy mom's famous chicken salad and one of her desserts.

Cucumber Jelly Salad

Meanwhile here are some good recipes with which to serve the rest of the family! First a delicious cucumber jelly salad. Quarter cucumbers and remove seeds. Grate these pieces to make 2 cups of pulp, and season with salt and paprika, then add 2 tablespoons vinegar and one tablespoon oil. Add teaspoon unflavored gelatin that has been soaked in 2 teaspoons cold water. Heat until gelatin is melted but be careful to see that it does not boil, as the cucumber should not be cooked. Cool until syrupy. Place a walnut half in the bottom of each of six individual molds. Pour in salad mixtures trying not to disturb the walnut meat. Unmold on lettuce leaves and serve with stiff mayonnaise.

Martha Washington Salad

There's nothing so refreshing as a really well-made, well-seasoned salad of greens. Martha Washington salad adds up to all of these qualifications. Use a large bowl for mixing. Blend ½ teaspoon salt, 2 grinds fresh black pepper and level teaspoon dried marjoram and tarragon in bottom of bowl and mash with wooden mallet. Then add ¼ cup oil and tablespoon wine vinegar. Add one head tender lettuce, one bunch watercress and one bunch young dandelion greens after they have been thoroughly washed and crisped. Toss with wooden fork and spoon.

Sauce for Fried Chicken

If you have managed to snag a tender chicken for frying, then celebrate the occasion by serving it with a luscious egg and almond sauce. To serve 4 wash and cut a 1½ pound or 2 pound broiler into pieces for serving. Cover neck and giblets with 2 cups boiling water. Add teaspoon salt, a bay leaf, 2 sprigs parsley, ½ teaspoon celery seed, and cook until stock has been reduced one half—about one hour. Then strain, reserving both stock and giblets. Sprinkle chicken with ½ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper and fry in ¼ cup fat in a skillet together with one whole, peeled, medium onion, turning frequently until well browned and tender. Remove onion and chop giblets, ¼ cup toasted almonds and 2 hard-cooked egg yolks, using the medium blade of the food chopper. Add to the strained chicken stock, reheat and serve as a sauce with the fried chicken.

Spicy Grape Juice Tapioca is a cool, inviting dessert, just right for a summer porch supper. Combine 1-3 cup quick-cooking tapioca, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon allspice, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and 1½ cups water in a saucepan. Mix well. Bring mixture to a full boil quickly over direct heat, stirring constantly. Remove from fire (mixture will be thin. Do not overcook.) Add one cup grape juice, and ¼ teaspoon each grated orange rind and grated lemon rind. Cool. Mixture thickens as it cools. Chill. Pile in sherbet glasses and serve with chilled cream. Yield: 6 portions.

Salmon, Rice Loaf Tops Menu

BY BETSY NEWMAN

Whenever I suggest evaporated milk in these menus, it is always with the mental reservation that if there is any shortage in your neighborhood, enough to endanger the babies supply, we will substitute something else for it, bottled milk, say, or white of eggs.

MENU

Salmon and Rice Loaf, Harvard Beets, Tossed Green Salad, Prune Whip or Graham, Renet Custard, Coffee.

Salmon and Rice Loaf

2 c. hot boiled rice, 1 c. salmon, 2 eggs, beaten. Juice of ½ lemon, ¼ tsp. pepper, 2 tbsps. melted butter or margarine, ½ tsp. salt.

Beat egg yolks and mix with rice, seasonings and salmon; add juice from salmon; then add stiffly beaten egg whites. Put in greased baking dish and set in shallow pan of water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) and garnish with parsley and sliced lemon. Serve with tomato sauce.

Prune Whip

1 c. evaporated milk, 2 tbsps. lemond juice, 1 c. sweetened prune pulp.

Chill milk thoroughly, at the same time chilling bowl and beater. Whip milk until stiff; add lemon juice and whip until very stiff. Fold in cold prune pulp and serve cold. Serves 6.

Graham Rennet Custard

1 pkg. orange rennet custard, ¼ c. finely chopped nuts, ¼ c. finely crushed graham crackers, 2 c. milk.

Put 1 teaspoon each of graham cracker crumbs and chopped nuts in bottom of 6 dessert dishes. Warm milk slowly, stirring constantly until it feels comfortably warm, not hot, when a few drops are dropped on inside of wrist. Stir contents of package of rennet into milk until dissolved — about 1 minute. Pour at once into individual dessert dishes. Let set until firm. Chill in refrigerator. Sprinkle a few nuts and cracker crumbs over top of each dish before serving. Serves 6.

WAC Recruiter Inducted Into Regular Army

Sgt. Mary Beltz, who is in charge of the Marion WAC recruiting office, was among 40 women to be inducted into the regular army at the studio of WHKC Sunday, in accordance with the new law disposing of the auxiliary and placing women in the regular army.

She announced that the age limit had been set at 20 through 49, and said, "In the army we have many more jobs open now. Even in the regular army civilian clothes may be worn after hours."

Sgt. Beltz is at the WAC recruiting office in room 15 of the postoffice from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. every day for the purpose of recruiting WACS.

COALS TO NEWCASTLE

By International News Service

NEW YORK—A variation of the aphorism about carrying coals to Newcastle is provided in the announcement that a substantial quantity of quick-frozen vegetables will be sent by the quartermaster corps to troops in Alaska. Of the 71,000,000 pounds of quick-frozen vegetables to be purchased for all the armed services this year, upwards of 4,000,000 pounds will be sent to the Pacific, the war department reports. The vegetables will include peas, lima beans, cut okra and spinach.

500 Attend Outing of St. Mary Parish

Over 500 members of St. Mary parish and their friends met at the Marion county fairgrounds for the annual church picnic Sunday.

A feature attraction of the afternoon was a softball game between the St. Mary High school team headed by Father Lay and the "Grand Old Men," headed by Father Latimer. The school team defeated the "Grand Old Men", 6 to 3. Rev. William Spickerman and Sgt. Robert McCollister acted as umpires.

The program opened with a concert by the Eagles band, which played a mixed program and concluded with "Old Comrades," a march dedicated to the boys in service, and "God Bless America."

Races and contests were conducted by Tom Andrews, Charles Gallaher, Bernard Moloney and Floyd Cornely. After the contests a basket dinner was enjoyed on the lawn and in the Art Hall at the fairground.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"YES, YOU can bet Dad didn't overlook any bets. Ducky agreed. Then with his radar that enables me to locate parking spaces and Ducky to find me.

"Good luck!" he said. "Be sure to stay in the room after Olina has a chance to see you."

"I remembered." I shouted something and walked over to the linen counter on the floor, picked out a few cups from Ruth Hayes' dress. Taking out an armful of hand towels, bath towels and bath mats, I went to walk up and down the corridor in order that I might do a semi-fainting motion when Ruth Hayes and Olina should get out of the elevator.

Not Long to Wait

I did not have long to wait, and I told myself that it was a good thing, for I felt myself growing more weary by the second. When the elevator stopped at the seventeenth floor, I pumped up strength from some hidden reservoir within me, and went up close to it, so that Ruth and Olina would have to pave me on their way from the elevator to Room 1720.

I was able, also, to keep my hands from trembling, and my face composed, with my eyes cast down. But my old trick of peering from beneath my lowered eyelashes stood me in good stead, enabling me to see Olina, with her handsome bag in her hand, walking beside Ruth Hayes toward the door of 1720.

A slender but powerfully built man carrying a suitcase also alighted from the elevator, putting a casual query to the elevator attendant as he did so.

"Which way is 17222" he asked, and I paid a mental tribute to the attention to detail which is my father's. It was the natural question for a stranger to ask, but I saw Ruth Hayes' head go up, and knew that she would watch the man closely until he had reached the room next to her own.

Passes Ruth and Olina

"Right around there," the attendant said, pointing, and with a brief "Thank you," the man strode down the corridor, passing Ruth and Olina with a perfunctory "Sorry!" Going into 1722, he closed the door sharply behind him.

I went into a room across the hall, put down part of my load of linen, and then came out again. As I saw Ruth and Olina pause before the door of 1720, I whipped into the "Exit" doorway just across from 1722, secure in the belief that Ruth was paying no more attention to me than if I had been a piece of furniture.

The place was an ideal listening post I found, for the voices of both Ruth and Olina, though they spoke in low tones, were distinctly audible to me.

"We can't talk very well here," Ruth began in matter-of-fact voice. "Be for come into my room until we get the business transacted."

"Oh, I mustn't do that!" Olina protested, in fluttering tones that did credit to her histrionic ability.

"Why not?" demanded Ruth sharply.

Promised Her Mother

"Because I promised my mother long ago," Olina explained naively, "that I never would go into any strange room with anyone whom I did not know. It is sad enough for me to come down here without anybody at home knowing it, but with that appeal from Georges, I didn't have any choice. But I can't disobey her in anything else."

"You say nobody knows you came down here?" Ruth queried.

"But don't you realize that I am not what your mother would term a stranger? Georges trusted me to see you and receive the contents of this bag from you and I certainly am not going to have you open it out in this corridor. Dont be foolish, now! Come into my room with me!"

"No! No!" Olina insisted vehemently, and then her voice suddenly rose in a frantic cry of "Maid! maid!"

YOUR HEALTH

Swing Shift Insomnia

My mail is full of complaints from war workers who are on the night shift and can't sleep, or think they can't sleep, in the daytime.

There is no question that there is a real problem involved here and one that needs considerable patience and thought. I think that planned adjustment is the best answer to most people's problems along these lines.

By adjustment, I mean individual adjustment by will power.

We are animals habituated to sleep at night and we can't change these century-old habits in the twinkling of an eye. The accommodations necessary are to make the bedroom as nearly an imitation of the bedroom at night as possible. Noise and light are to be excluded and this can be done nearly anywhere, but you may have to set your will power to work on it.

The adjustments cannot be made, as I said, in a day, or even in a week, and the worker will find that as time goes on his restlessness and apprehension leave him and he is sleeping better.

Rest without sleep overcomes fatigue and restores bodily energies provided the individual relaxes as much as possible. Anyone can train himself to this relaxation. Don't try napping on a couch. Make a good job of it, take off the clothes, get into bed and read for a while in a relaxed condition and nine times out of ten your troubles will be over before you know it.

In fact, the really best treatment for insomnia is a few convincing conversations with the patient, or let the patient talk to himself. He won't believe it at first. Especially if he has gotten into the habit of taking one of our new hypnotics, because they are like the crutches a lame man has been using for years. He is convinced he cannot get along without them, but once he finds he can and has enjoyed his freedom, he is as happy as the day is long.

There is no question about the efficacy of these new hypnotics. The old ones we used to use had a long induction period and usually ran along a period of action. They left the victim dopey and were more habit forming than the modern ones. But the very fact that the modern hypnotics have so many virtues is another reason for using them with caution and sticking to nature.

Of course, if the war worker who has to change to daytime sleeping has also been having insomnia and bad nights anyway, he must expect a longer and somewhat more intensive period of psychotherapy. But I am convinced that if a conscientious effort is made to overcome insomnia by psychologic means, it will always meet with success and it will certainly be worthwhile to do away with the all too frequent hypnotic habit which, encouraged by modern doctors, is growing by leaps and bounds.

There is no scientific reason for suggestion that sleep of equal depth and length and equal restorative function cannot be had in the daytime as nighttime.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, Aug. 10

AN AUSPICIOUS time for establishing ways and means for the achievement of projects of major importance according to lunar and natal aspects. It should be a stimulating and expansive influence, with promise of operations of outstanding significance. In business or financial activities, yet there may be decidedly menacing situations also. There may be trickery and fraud, with shrewd contracts and agreements, which may bewilder and perplex. The judgments should be based on logic and sound principles and clear thinking rather than emotional or impulsive conduct. Surprising success should crown straight policies.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year of excellent opportunity for attaining advanced goals both in business and in personal popularity and prestige. It should be a most encouraging and expansive opening, with honors, preferment and public recognition for sound and worthy projects. But all may be negatived by bad reasoning, want of sound policies and principles, and by entanglements of a debatable nature. Treachery, fraud and collusion, especially with papers or contracts might have sinister and sorrowful denouements. The mental grasp of situations is not wholly dependable. Be cautious and alert to schemes.

A child born on this day may have much talent and ambition, probably to shine in the public eye, but it may become entangled with questionable and suspicious associates.
